GERMANS CAPTURE 30,000 RUSSIANS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The capture of 30,000 Russians by German troops is announced in a wireless dispatch from Berlin received today. This dispatch says: "It was officially announced in Berlin today that about 30,000 Russians had been taken prisoners by the Germans in the fighting in East Prussia, particularly at Ortelsburg, Hohenstein and Tanneburg. They include many officers of high rank. The German attack at these points was across swamps and lakes.

Accuse Quincy Official

AUTO OF ASSESSOR KILLS BOY

A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Eric Vergfors, a member of the Quincy Board of Assessors, who is charged with manslaughter and violation of the automobile laws in connection with the death of Paul Balcom, a seven-year-old Dorchester boy, who was struck and killed by an automobile alleged to have been operated by Vergfors in Bedford street, Abington.

The accident was witnessed by the boy's father, R. G. Balcom of No. 20 Grampian way, Dorchester. Vergfors, the police say, turned his car about after running down the boy and made off without reporting the accident or waiting to assist the boy. Balcom jumped into another car and after a chase overtook Vergfors in Weymouth. Vergfors gave himself up to the Quincy police.

The assessor was not arrested at the time because Herbert L. Pratt, clerk of the Hingham court, could not be found. Chief T. F. Hollis of the Abington police, however, secured a warrant against Vergfors today.

The Balcom boy was on his way back from a berrying trip with his father and mother. They had left their car in Bedford street, Abington, while they were in the woods picking berries. The boy emerged from the woods into the road just as Vergfors' car shot over Broad Hill. The boy's parents shouted to him but it was too late. He was struck by the machine and died almost instantly.

Faucet Left Open Causes Big Damage

A faucet left running in the Marceau Studio on the fifth floor of the building at No. 160 Tremont street caused several thousand dollars' worth of damage before it was discovered today, much water flooding the floors beneath. The furnishings of the English Tea Rooms on the fourth and third floors were damaged, as was the stock of Mme Christie, milliner, on the second floor; the shoe store of T. E. Moseley on the first floor, and stock in the basement.

Ask Aid in Finding Four Lost Persons

Appeals have come to the AMERICAN for help in finding the wife of Havelock Hazel of No. 14 Conant street, Salem, who left home August 2; John Smallcomb of No. 68 Liverpool street, East Boston, missing since September, 1912; Ernest Gould, aged sixteen, of No. 158 Holland street, West Somerville, and Eugene H. Steele, aged nineteen, of North Brookfield, who disappeared August 19.

Held in Connection with Store Break

William H. Ott, twenty-four, married, of the U. S. S. Rhode Island; James Corcoran, twenty-eight, of Fall River, and John Mallen, twenty-one, a seaman on the fruiter Carthilo, were arrested early today on Atlantic avenue. They are held pending an investigation of the breaking of show windows at the liquor stores of Peter C. Crowley and J. E. Wasserman & Sons on Atlantic avenue and State street.

Clothing on Fire, Runs to Hospital

William Clayman, sixty-one, today raced from No. 3 Hancock place, West End, to the Blossom street entrance of the Massachusetts General Hospital, his clothing ablaze from an explosion of kerosene. He had tripped while carrying the oil, falling against the stove. The blaze in the kitchen was extinguished with slight loss. Clayman is seriously burned.

Find Man Dead With Razor in His Hand

Walter Johnson, thirty-five, living at No. 9 Rollins street, was found dead in his room with a razor in his hand by a fellow-lodger early today. He was last seen alive yesterday afternoon by his landlady. Medical Examiner Magrath was called and pronounced it as death by suicide. The body was taken to the city morgue.

Waltham Man Is Jailed for Attack

As a result of an affray last Saturday night, when he attacked and badly beat Mr. and Mrs. John Malloy of No. 54 Myrtle street, Waltham, John Nickerson, twenty-eight, of No. 58 Myrtle street was given thirty days for assault and battery and ten days for drunkenness in the Waltham Court today.

MINISTERS SUPPORT WILSON

Boston ministers discussed the neutral policy advocated by President Wilson at their meeting today in Chipman Hall and ordered sent to him a statement, endorsing his policy of neutrality.

Many ministers were unwilling to be neutral in the expression of their opinions.

Rev. J. G. Taylor declared that in expressing his personal opinion he must say that he did not in an, sense approve of the way that Germany had treated Belgium in the present war.

President W. G. Batt presented a resolution in which he declared that a strong nation like Germany had oppressed a weaker.

His resolution did not pass.

Rev. John L. Barton, D. D., maintained that this was not the time to express personal opinions, but offered a resolution declaring: "that we ministers desire to assure the President of our support in maintaining the neutrality of the United States and in offering the services of our country when the proper time arrives for establishing peace." The resolve was passed.

Gen. Devol Confers with Charity Board

General Carroll Devol, quartermaster-general of the United States army, and fourteen members of the Salem Relief Committee met with the State Board of Charity today in Governor Walsh's office to discuss the matter of the appropriation of $200,000 made by Congress for the relief of Salem fire sufferers. General Devol arrived in Salem Saturday, having been sent on by the War Department to get a first-hand idea of the conditions now existing in that city.

President Wilson Plays Golf Game

CORNISH, N. H., Aug. 31.—President Wilson got his first opportunity to play golf today since his first arrival at the "Summer White House." Accompanied by Dr. Cary T. Grayson, the President motored to the links of the Hanover Country Club early today. The President says he already feels the benefit of the rest.

DESTROY SUBURBS OF PARIS

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Abandoning the Napoleonic tactics by which the French army attempted to strike and shatter the Germans at their weakest point, the armies of the Republic are now concentrated along a massive front to resist step by step the enemy as it advances upon the capital. If, by the sheer weight of numbers, the British and French are forced back upon the capital, they will not take refuge here, but will stay in the open to harass the Germans.

This was learned today after Minister of War Millerand had returned to the War Office from the front, where he was in conference for several hours at headquarters on Sunday. His departure from the capital was secret and no statement has been given out.

The papers print numerous incidents showing that the Parisians expect the worst, but are prepared for it. The Bonnet Rouge, commenting on the aeroplane attack, says:

"Paris is prepared for the worst."

SUBURBS BEING RAZED.

An incessant series of heavy explosions was heard here today as the military forces began the work of blowing up such suburbs of Paris as interfere with the defensive fire of the city forts.

Thousands of houses, shops and factories are being razed.

A circle of country thirty-four miles long is being swept bare of buildings.

These structures lie for the most part among famed suburban towns such as Neuilly, Versailles and Vincennes.

A radical change in the French military operations has gone into effect within the last seventy-two hours. General Joffre's policy of dividing his armies, which was indorsed by M. Messimy, the former War Minister, has been discarded. M. Millerand has taken command.

"BETWEEN TWO FIRES."

The bottling up of vast forces within the confines of forts surrounding any of the main centres of defence will be avoided. This was an error committed by the French in 1870.

The fortified cities will be strongly garrisoned, of course. Paris most strongly of all, but the French and British forces will keep the field. Preparations have already been made to establish bases for them in cities south of Paris. If the Germans take Paris they will thus be between two fires.

The War Office says that the continual withdrawal of the allies' left is for strategic purposes, but this has failed to reassure the people of Paris. The excitement manifested over the first rumors that the capital would be besieged has disappeared, however. In its place has come a grim determination to fight well and suffer whatever may be necessary for the welfare of the republic.

In the northern outskirts of the capital many of the residents owning homes that lie beyond Forts Du Demon, Du Montlignon and De Montmorency have fired them in obedience to the order of the War Office.

BULLETINS

GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS IN EAST PRUSSIA.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—An official telegram received in London declares that fresh forces of Germans have made their appearance on the Prussian front and that at some points they are taking the offensive against the Russians.

GERMANS EVACUATE DIEST.

ANTWERP, Aug. 31.—Evacuation of Diest by the Germans and their withdrawal from the entire northern part of Belgium was announced today by the Belgium War Office. "The country north of the river Demur has been cleared of Germans," says the official notice. "Diest has been evacuated. No Germans have been found by our scouts in the districts of Giehl, Turnhout, Merchtem or Londerseel."

The central part of Louvain was destroyed by fire on Tuesday, says another statement.

TRAP GERMANS NEAR BOULOGNE.

BOULOGNE, France, Aug. 31.—Trapped in the forest along the front of the French forces, strong detachments of German troops have been surrounded and cut to pieces, according to travelers from the eastern districts who arrived here this morning.

GERMANS LOSE GUNS TO BELGIANS.

ANTWERP, Aug. 31.—German and Belgian troops engaged in a fierce artillery duel fifteen miles from Louvain on Friday, according to reports received here and the Germans lost several guns. The Belgians are said to have inflicted severe losses, 150 Germans being taken to Aix la Chappelle.

JAPS LAND NEAR KIAO-CHAU.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Tientsin says Japanese troops save been landed at several points on the coast near Kiao-Chau.

REPORT THE LEIPZIG TAKEN.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 31.—Reports are in circulation in Victoria and Vancouver, B. C., that the German cruiser Leipzig had been sunk or captured off the Vancouver island coast.

SEIZE GERMAN SAMOA CAPITAL.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The official information bureau announces that Apia, a seaport of Upolu, Samoan islands, and capital of the German part of the group, has surrendered to a British force from New Zealand.

AUSTRIANS TAKE MANY RUSSIAN PRISONERS.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Aug. 31.—Count De Zogyeny-Marich, Austrian ambassador to Germany, announced today that the Austro-Hungarian army that invaded Russian Poland had defeated the Russians at Kraznik and thrown them back on Lublin.

"We have taken up a strong position in front of Samoset," he said. "Losses have been severe on both sides. I regret to say, but the Russians suffered worse than did the Austrians. We took a large number of prisoners and also several guns."

AVIATORS ATTACK HANGAR.

BASEL, Switzerland, Aug. 31.—Two German aeroplanes made an unsuccessful attempt to destroy with bombs the dirigible balloon hangar at Pelfort, France, thirty-five miles northwest of her.

PARIS REPORTS BATTLE IS RESUMED.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—An official statement issued in Paris says: "The situation in the main remains the same. After a period of calm, the battle has been resumed. A regiment of the enemy's infantry, essaying to cross the Meuse, was almost completely annihilated."

Japs Not Likely to Invade Europe

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The Japanese Embassy today declared that a transfer of Japanese troops to France was highly improbable and that such an expedition hardly would be sanctioned by public sentiment in Japan because of enormous cost of an enterprise of this character.

ALLIES FIGHT IN STRONG POSITION

By HERBERT TEMPLE.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—While heavy rains have served to check the advance of the right flank of the German army, the allies have thrown forward reinforcements and now hold a position much stronger than that which they occupied before the fighting at Mons or Charleroi.

Leaving behind barricades and other works, supported by French and British artillery, the allies are awaiting with confidence for the attack of the main body of the German host upon the second line of defence.

News of the destruction of a German army corps came in the following dispatch to the Daily Mail:

"It is announced officially at the sub-prefecture at Dieppe that a German army corps has been wiped out by General Pau's troops."

This was followed several hours later by a dispatch from Boulogne to the Times, which, in part, said:

"The war cloud has passed away to the south, leaving this town calm and peaceful. The department of Pas De Calais, from Lille to Dieppe, is said to be free from Germans. Dispatch bearers from the front passed through here Sunday afternoon and afterwards the news was posted that the German right had been checked.

"General Pau, the hero of this war, after his return from the eastern front, where he repulsed the deadly attacks at Muelhausen, has dealt a smashing blow to the German army corps which was striving to penetrate the heart of France. Paris is still safe for the time being, with the great army of the allied forces drawn across as a barrier which surely will not be broken by the enemy."

Writing from Amiens, W. T. Massey, a correspondent of the Daily Telegraph and a field correspondent of the AMERICAN, says:

"A great cure is being adopted to

CONCLAVE TO ELECT A POPE OPENS IN ROME

By BRIXTON D. ALLAIRE.

ROME, Aug. 31.—Attended by the most solemn and impressive ceremonies of the Roman Catholic Church, the conclave which will elect a successor to Pope Pius X. convened in the Vatican today. This is the first conclave in many years over which the shadow of war has been cast and the conditions prevailing throughout Europe will exercise a powerful influence on the deliberations.

Cardinal Gibbons and Cardinal O'Connell, who are coming from the United States, are expected on Wednesday. Apartments have already been allotted to them in the Vatican.

The political lines of demarcation have become more clearly defined since the arrival of the Spanish cardinals.

GENERAL PAUL PAU, DESTROYER OF A GERMAN CORPS, FRENCH WAR HERO

ALLIES WITHDRAW TO STRONGER POSITION

ene that the wounded do not meet and discuss war affairs with civilians. Those who do not feel themselves bound by this restriction have little to tell after all, for they only know what occurred with a limited area. A wounded Britisher told me that the British cavalry was compelled to change its position constantly by the quickness of the German movements. Many trenches were dug which were never occupied."

This hussar described the German uniform as very hard to pick out at long range, even with field glasses.

All through I have been told that the fighting of the French and English in northeastern France has been against odds, but that the German advance has been stayed. A week ago at Marville, a French force of 8,000 men of the second army corps not merely stemmed the strong German tide, but rolled back a force of 20,000 men for twelve hours.

Around Charleville is a semi-circular sweep of hills. On these the French artillery posted their guns, the cannon being placed in holes scooped out on the hill sides so that they would not be visible to the eyes of the German scouts.

BRIDGES BLOWN UP.

Finally the German advance was seen approaching over three bridges leading in great numbers. Suddenly three bridges which they had crossed were blown up. Their retreat was cut off. The destruction of the bridges was the signal to the French artillery men to open fire. At the same time French sharpshooters, who were in ambush, began to pour in effective volleys.

Into all the town except around those places where the French rifle-men posted themselves, there was a tornado of bursting shells. Houses collapsed and the air was full of smoke and wreckage.

CZAR'S ARMY INVESTS THREE BIG GERMAN CITIES, SAYS WAR OFFICE

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 31.—Official announcement of the investment of the German cities of Koenigsberg, Thorn and Granden was made by the Russian War Office today.

Several corps of Austrians are advancing from the west of Lemburg and the Russian advance guards have already been in contact with their right and left wings, whose cavalry has been driven back upon its supports.

After occupying Allenstein, the Russians are advancing rapidly upon Osterode, where the German reinforcements are concentrating.

(This conflicts with the German statement given out in Berlin that five Russian corps had been defeated.)

Russian military experts declare that the Austrians committed a grave error by crossing the Vistula River, running the danger of being cut off from their base at Cracow. Unless they protect their line of communication as they withdraw, the Russian troops are likely to drive in a wedge that will split the Austrian armies in eastern and western divisions and surround more than 200,000 men at Lemberg with the alternative of surrendering or starving.

Having assembled its mighty armies the Russian government has decided that it has more than enough for the time and six weeks' leave of absence has been granted to the reservists of 1907. This leave may be extended, but they have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to return. These reservists number about 500,000.

The destruction of a German Zeppelin at Mlawa was confirmed today by a dispatch from Moscow. This stated that eight men who had been taken prisoners when the airship was forced to descend by sharpshooters had arrived there. Thirteen members of the Zeppelin's crew were killed.

Deny French Attack by Air on Nuremberg

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. — The French Embassy has issued a statement saying:

"In an interview attributed to Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, it is stated this morning that on the first day of the war French aeroplanes bombarded the open city of Nuremberg.

"French aeroplanes did nothing of the sort. Any one will understand that if they had tried any such attempt they would not have taken for their aim a city whose fate was absolutely immaterial in the present struggle.

"The accusation is palpably unjustified."

GERMAN WAR OFFICE CLAIMS RUSSIAN ADVANCE IS CHECKED

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, Aug. 31.—"Both in the East and the West our troops are victorious," says an official statement issued at the War office today. "The Russian advance into East Prussia has been halted, while Generals Kluk, Von Buelow and Hausen are steadily driving back the British and French forces that oppose their advance on Paris.

"The Russian troops are retreating, though they show great bravery in opposing our forces.

"The Austrian invasion of Russia is proceeding successfully. Our allies are nearing Lublin, despite the fact that the Russians have been reinforced.

"This is at wide variance with the St. Petersburg version of the situation in Russian Poland. The Russian general staff states that the Austrians that entered the province of Lublin had to withdraw to Lemburg.)

"The Emilich troops sent to France have been cut off from their base and will be unable to receive reinforcements. The entire campaign as mapped out by the German general staff has been successful."

GRAVE DANGER INDICATED IN REPORTS, LONDON POST SAYS

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Post today editorially calls attention to a statement issued by the French Embassy as indicating that the allied forces have again been compelled to fall back before the German advance in the neighborhood of Le Fere, which is more than twenty miles nearer to Paris than the Cambrai-les-Cateau line, where the allies reorganized after the Germans crossed the French border. Fighting is also reported in the vicinity of Guise.

Le Fere is only a little more than sixty miles from Paris as the crow flies. The Post says:

"A statement issued by the French Embassy discloses a situation of much gravity. A German army was attacking from the west the line from La Fere to Guise, and, though unsuccessful at Guise, was making progress at La Fere. These two German armies were therefore only forty miles apart.

"The German army attacking on the front at Guise and La Fere has clear country behind it, and a sharp offensive turning movement on the German army's right flank will interpose it between the French and Paris."

TAKE PARIS OR PERISH IN THE ATTEMPT, IS KAISER'S ORDER

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Times correspondent at Ostend records, at second hand, a conversation with a German officer from Brussels, who said that frantic efforts were being made to inflict a crushing blow on the Allies, especially on the English forces.

Notwithstanding the success achieved by the German army, the dispatch says, there is a feeling among many German soldiers that they are fighting against too great odds.

Despite all efforts to conceal the news from Prussia, it is stated, information of a disquieting character regarding events there is beginning to circulate among the German forces and this feeling of anxiety was intensified when two divisions, totalling 30,000 men, passed the Meuse by the bridge of Audenne at Seilles, between Namur and Liege, en route for German Holland.

The Emperor has made it known to every soldier that his orders are to take Paris or die, the dispatch concludes.

FEAR GROWS IN ENGLAND THAT TURKS WILL JOIN IN WAR

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Fears that Turkey will enter the war on Germany's side and will put her hordes in an attempt to regain territory lost in the Balkan conflict grew hourly today. The British foreign office has received no notice from England's ambassador at Constantinople for two days, which is unusual despite the delay over all telegraph wires on the continent.

The Exchange Telegraph's diplomatic agent states that Turkey may declare war against Greece at any moment.

"The situation is extremely grave," he says. "Germans are pouring into Constantinople to help the Turks, but the Porte has been warned that it signs its own death warrant if it begins hostilities."

This expert fails to state the source of his information, but he is usually reliable.

When the cruisers Goeben and Breslau were purchased by Turkey it was thought that they would maintain her neutrality, but it is now thought that German success has inspired her to participation in the war.

ITALY REFUSES TO RETREAT FROM HER NEUTRAL POSITION

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE.
Staff Correspondent of the American.

ROME, Aug. 31.—Baron Macchio, Austrian ambassador to Italy, today transmitted to Foreign Minister San Giuliano a long dispatch that he had received from Vienna. The foreign minister subsequently conferred with Premier Salandra.

It was reported on Saturday that Italy had sent an ultimatum to Austria. While the Italian foreign office today refused to reveal the nature of the communication presented by Baron Macchio, it was stated that "Italy sees no reason for altering her decision to remain neutral."

The Duke d'Abruzzi, commander of the fleet, arrived here today. He expected to return to his command tonight.

1,000 NAMES ON NEW LIST OF THE DEAD ISSUED IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 30, via Copenhagen and London, Aug. 31.—The twelfth list of German losses was made public today. It contains 3,000 names.

The total of German casualties made public up to the present time is as follows: 1,143 dead, 3,326 wounded and 1,761 missing.

No news from either of the German fronts had been given up to midnight tonight.

As an evidence of the enthusiasm of the German people in the war it is announced here that 2,000,000 volunteers have presented themselves for service.

As the result of the patriotism shown by the Socialists of Germany, the Anti-Socialist Association has ceased its activities, at the same time expressing the hope that it will never have to resume after the war is over.

Sidelights on the War

Germans, Frenchmen, Russians and Englishmen, all members of Boston Bakers Union No. 7, joined in songs of their native lands at a smoke talk at headquarters. "Die Wacht am Rhein," "God Save the King" and "The Marseillaise" were all cheered. The union represents almost every nation of Europe in its membership. Many of the bakers have served in the armies of their native countries.

REPORT LEMAN PRISONER.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A dispatch to the Havas agency from Ostend says it is reported there that General Leman, who commanded the Belgian troops at Liege, is a prisoner of the Germans at Magdeburg.

MOURN LOUVAIN LOSSES.

ROME, Aug. 31, via Paris.—News of the destruction of Louvain by the Germans has caused dismay at the Vatican. Louvain being a great centre for Catholic studies and also containing the American college for the education of young Americans preparing for the priesthood.

ALLOW CODE MESSAGES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Germany has virtually accepted the plan of the United States for the enforcement of neutrality over wireless communication to belligerent countries. The plan permits the German Embassy, as well as the diplomatic representatives of all other belligerents to send code messages by wireless, but American naval officers must be taken into the confidence of the senders to establish the neutral nature of communications.

CHAIN KAISER'S NEPHEW.

PARIS, via London, Aug. 31.—Count von Schwerin, a nephew of the German Emperor, was among the prisoners sent toward the west from the zone of fighting. His hands and feet were chained because he refused to give his word he would not try to escape.

KAISER SEES WOUNDED.

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 31.—The German Emperor and Empress met at Bad Nassau at the residence of Baron von Stein. Their majesties spent some time visiting the wounded.

CHURCHILL GIVES PRAISE.

LONDON, Aug. 31. — Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, visited Chatham to inspect the cruiser and torpedo boat destroyers damaged in the fight off Heligoland. He congratulated the officers and men on their splendid behavior.

TRAINS FOR TOURISTS.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—As the transportation of troops on the various national lines grows less, train service will be doubled or trebled in order to permit of the departure of foreigners from France.

URGES JAPANESE TROOPS.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Stephen Pichon, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an article in The Temps Journal, asks why the Japanese army could not participate in the war in Europe. "I need not add that we should hasten."

TOBACCO FOR ARMY.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The French government has agreed to admit, free of duty, parcels containing tobacco, for the troops at the front.

SOLVAY NO HERO NOW.

PARIS, Aug. 31. — Ernest Solvay, whom Germany holds as a hostage for the payment of the $40,000,000 war fine imposed on Brussels, recently observed his jubilee as the inventor of soda by the ammonia process. At the time the Kaiser conferred on Solvay one of the highest distinctions.

BRITISH, REINFORCED, FIRM, SAYS KITCHENER

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Lord Kitchener, in a review based on Sir John French's reports, today finds the position of the Allies in France and Belgium cheering. The reinforced British are standing firm, he declares, and the French are holding their own.

He points out that Germany must eventually lose if the Allies merely block their advance, while defeat would be fatal to the Kaiser's forces. He says:

"Although the dispatches of Sir John French as to the recent battle have not yet been received, it is possible now to state what has been the British share in the recent operations.

"There has, in fact, been a four days battle — on the twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth of August. During the whole of this period the British, in conformity with the general movement of the French armies, were occupied in resisting and checking the German advance and in withdrawing to new lines of defence.

"The battle began on Sunday at Mons, during which day and part of the night the German attack, which was stubbornly pressed and repeated, was completely checked by the British front. On Monday, the twenty-fourth, the Germans made vigorous efforts in superior numbers to prevent the safe withdrawal of the British army and to drive it into the fortress of Maubeuge.

"The effort was frustrated by the steadiness and skill with which the British retirement was conducted, and, as on the previous day, very heavy losses, far in excess of anything suffered by us, were inflicted on the enemy, who, in dense formation and in enormous masses, marched forward again and yet again to storm the British lines.

"The British retirement proceeded on the twenty-fifth with continuous fighting, though not on the scale of the previous two days, and by the night of the twenty-fifth the British army occupied the line of Cambrai, Landrecies and Le Cateau.

"Cambrai is a fortified town in the department of North, thirty-two miles south-east of Lille on the river Scheldt. Le Cateau is fourteen miles east by southeast of Cambrai. It had been intended to resume the battle on the morning of the twenty-sixth, but the German attack, in which no less than five army corps were engaged, was so close and fierce that it was not possible to carry out this intention until the afternoon.

"That battle on this day, the twenty-sixth, was of a most severe and desperate character. The troops offered a superb and most stubborn resistance to the tremendous odds with which they were confronted, and at length extricated themselves in good order, though with serious loss and under the heaviest artillery fire. No guns were taken by the enemy, except those the horses of which had all been killed or which were shattered by high explosive shells.

"General French estimates that during the whole of these operations from the twenty-third to the twenty-sixth inclusively his losses amounted to 5,000 or 6,000 men. On the other hand, the losses suffered by the Germans in their attacks across the open, and through their dense formation, are out of all proportion to those which we have suffered.

"In Landrecies alone on the twenty-fifth, in an instance in which infantry brigade advanced in close order into a narrow street which they completely filled, our machine guns were brought to bear on this target from the end of the town. The head of the column was swept away. A frightful panic ensued, and it is estimated that 800 to 900 dead and wounded Germans were left in this street alone.

"Another incident which may be chosen from many like it was the charge of the German guard cavalry division upon the British twelfth cavalry brigade, when the German cavalry were thrown back with great losses and in absolute disorder. These are notable examples of what has taken place over practically the whole front during these engagements, and the Germans have been made to pay the extreme price for every forward march they have made.

"Since the twenty-sixth, apart from cavalry fighting, the British army has not been molested. It has rested and refitted after its exertions and glorious achievements. Reinforcements amounting to double the losses sustained during it have joined. Every gun has been replaced and the army is now ready to take part in the next battle intended to ensure the British/Allied strength and undaunted spirits.

"GERMANS HAVE INFLICTED NO CRUSHING DEFEAT ON ALLIES."

ASHMEADE BARTLETT TELLS OF WEEK'S FIGHT

By ASHMEADE BARTLETT,

War Correspondent of the Boston American and London Daily Telegraph

LONDON, Aug. 31.—We have just passed through the most critical week in the history of Europe and of democracy. We are about to enter upon another even more critical.

Everywhere the allies have been forced to retire. The British army might have been involved in grave disaster but for the steadfast courage of the rank and file.

The fighting qualities of a nation must not be judged by the aristocracy. They must be gauged by the conduct of the man from the city and the plow. We were uncertain before last Sunday whether we had deteriorated or not as a fighting race. Now, a week later, although we have been forced to retire some fifty miles, our army stands higher in the estimation of our allies and of our foes than ever.

We have not yet won the victory, but we have done something which the great Napoleon considered of far more value in war. We have proved that none of the calculated odds on which the German contest really apply to our men, and this factor is more disconcerting to an enemy than even a crushing defeat. If, therefore, we are disappointed at having been obliged to fall back from the line from Mons, Charleroi and Namur to lines at Amiens, Hieron and Maisieres, what are the feelings of the German commanders and of the German rank and file?

NO CRUSHING DEFEAT.

German strategy has been based on sound principles—that is strike with largest available numbers at your opponents weakest point. Up to the present Germans have enjoyed an enormous strategical advantage. They have strained every effort to gain a maximum profit from it. In this they have signally failed. They have inflicted no crushing defeat on the Allies. They have not captured the British army, which was their main endeavor all last week. They have not yet even been in contact with the mass of the allied troops.

All they have accomplished is this: They have pushed back intact the allied lines from Sambre to Sommes; they have overrun with masses of cavalry the north of France, and are reported to be in possession of Bourlogne, thus cutting the British army's natural line of communication and forcing us to adopt a new base.

That is the absolute extent of their successes. The German nation's last reserve has been called out, not to serve at home, but in foreign territory, within three weeks of opening of the war.

GERMANS DESPERATE.

This clearly gives us an indication of the desperate straits in which the German staff is placed. To achieve success in the west before there comes a crushing and overwhelming loss in the east, their armies have suffered enormous losses.

The trial of strength between the armies must take place in the next few days. This is a historic week in German history. Next Thursday is the anniversary of Sedan. This will be a tremendous incentive to both armies and men. It is almost certain they will strain every nerve to break through the allied line.

BRITISH ARMY HAS SO FAR RETAINED ITS COHESION

By COLONEL REPINGTON.

Military Expert of the Boston American and London Times.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The statement by Lord Kitchener today must be taken as an authoritative and accurate account of the severe fighting in France during the past week. It is a very plain, straightforward statement, and it is timely, because, when an army is in retreat and being constantly attacked, parties become detached and considering themselves the only survivors, spread fear far and wide with most astonishing stories of disaster. The further we are from the fighting line the worse is the news. It is only when we reach the front that we find order and coolness.

Our little army in France is small enough, in all conscience, for the work which it has to do, but it is a very perfect instrument in its way.

ARMY HAS DONE WELL.

Well armed, well equipped, well trained and well led, is has suffered heavy losses, but it has preserved unconquerable constancy under adverse conditions, and although severely attacked by the enemy in overwhelming numbers, it has retained its cohesion, has inflicted upon the Germans immense losses and has evidently taught its pursuers such salutary lessons that they have decided for the moment to leave it alone.

Its tenacity during the week of battles has been above all praise.

The Kaiser's finest Prussian troops, from guard downward, have been able to shatter it.

All honor to the army, which has come nobly through the most trying ordeal, cannot be improved on. The troops of the Germans on their own showing supposed at first that they had shut up our army at Maubeuge and later again they spread reports they had encircled our troops. They have done neither.

Our army is now south of the Somme and has had several days in which to make good its loss, to replenish its supplies of food and ammunition. The special reserve and first reinforcements are already on the line of communication and will enable the gaps to be rapidly filled. The army is once more complete and ready to give as good an account of itself as ever.

FRENCH HAVE RECOVERED.

It has attracted the attack of the pick of the German troops and has thereby given the French time to recover themselves. Our gallant allies, now in line on both flanks of our army, have by their aggressive attitude, brought the German offensive to a temporary standstill. Even if a general offensive is not practicable we can count on a determined and energetic resistance on the line of the Somme and Palaises.

If the fortune of war compels us to retire still further we can assume that with 1870 in mind no general in the field will allow himself to be shut up in a fortress, even though this fortress be the capital of France.

The allied armies must keep the field and the fortresses, Paris included. From a statement issued by the London German embassy it appears that a severe action has been in progress since Friday last about Launois and Signy Labbaye, ten miles southwest of Mezieres.

ALLIES' LOSSES SMALLER THAN GERMANS, SAYS LONDON TIMES

Boston American-London Times Special War Dispatches.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The London Times' news summary says:

The official account of operations issued by the War Office Sunday is the most complete and reassuring statement yet communicated to the British public. We are assured that since Wednesday there has been no serious fighting, so far as the British forces are concerned, that reinforcements amounting to double the loss suffered have already joined, that every gun has been replaced and that the army is now ready to take part in the next great encounter with undiminished strength and undaunted spirit.

The left wing of the allies, four French army corps, had taken the offensive and had driven the Prussian guard and Tenth German Army Corps back to Guise.

FIGHTING IN SOUTHWEST.

On the other hand, there has been heavy fighting southwest of the great French fortress of Mezieres, probably due to an advance by the army under command of the German Crown Prince in Lorraine. The French offensive is said to be still in progress.

There emerges from these details a clear impression of the tremendous effort put forth by the German commander to strike an annihilating blow. The losses up to Wednesday night, estimated by Sir John French at 5,000 or 6,000 men, have been paid for by the Germans at a far heavier price.

The Russian armies in East Prussia are approaching the fortresses of Thorn and Dronieno. The garrisons of these fortresses are joining in resistance to the Russians.

RUSSIANS STILL ADVANCE.

The Russian advance in Galicia is still proceeding. On the other hand, Austrian forces have invaded Russian Poland and are advancing toward Lublin. As our military correspondent points out, this Austrian offensive will have to be disposed of before a Russian invasion of East Prussia and Galicia can be pressed home.

The French government has called up all classes of reservists not already in the field.

The report that Boulogne has been occupied by German troops is contradicted. A German aeroplane flew over Paris Sunday and dropped three bombs without doing any appreciable damage.

Vice-Admiral Kato, commander-in-chief of the second Japanese squadron, arrived at Tsingtau, port of Kiaochau.

Norwegian Liner Damaged in Battle

CHRISTIANSAND, Norway, Aug. 31.—The Norwegian steamer Kongstad has come into port today badly damaged as a result of being under fire in the naval battle between the British and German off Heligoland. Three of her crew were injured by shells.

700 British Troops Hold 5,000 Germans

PARIS, Aug. 31.—The Figaro prints an article eulogizing the resistance offered at Tournai by 700 British troops against 5,000 Germans. Only 300 of the British troops returned to Cambria, it says, the rest having fallen on the battlefield.

Keeping Up the Health of the European Armies

Never has the medical department of armed Europe been confronted with such a gigantic task as it now faces. In keeping soldiers healthy on the march, in caring for wounded and in reducing mortality by preventive measures.

Medical science has aided the work of hygiene vastly by vaccines for typhoid and smallpox, by calculating the exact amounts of food and water necessary for best fighting results and by devising first-aid kits which keep down the percentage of infection after wounds are inflicted.

On the other hand, the fearful destructiveness of modern artillery and infantry fire makes the average of wounded higher. There is a pretty fiction to the effect that war has become more "humane" and that the small calibre, high velocity bullets now used inflict less frightful wounds, providing they do not kill outright.

But military surgeons do not confirm these stories of neat little holes, which merely cripple, but do not mangle. Germany uses a steel-jacketed bullet which lacerates. France shoots bullets of copper and zinc which are terribly ripping and tearing. In brief, the modern "humane" bullet splinters bones, carries clothing into wounds and makes mischief in the human body.

"HUMANE" SIDE LACKING.

The bullets are "humane," however, compared with shrapnel fire, which does frightful execution. Even the common shell explodes into heated fragments that burn, cut and tear.

On the whole the military surgeon fails to be impressed with the "humane" side of the present war.

Statistics show that disease has heretofore killed more men than bullets, cannon fire or bayonets. In the peninsular campaign in Spain 60,000 French soldiers were killed in battle, but disease took 400,000. In the Boer War disease claimed over 14,000 British soldiers a year for the two years and eight months of the conflict. Nearly 2 per cent. of the British army in South Africa was constantly sick.

The medical work now begins with enlistment or conscription. The unfit are excluded. And, from the moment that a soldier is accepted, he is continually under the army doctor's supervision until he is discharged or dies and is interred under the medical department's direction.

It is cheaper to keep the soldier well than to cure him after he falls sick. The commander of the army demands soldiers who can fight, not invalids, which are a drag on those who are fit.

GERMANS FIND OWN SHOES.

After accepting the soldier, the medical staff gives him setting-up drills and prescribes, in co-operation with the equipment authorities, just what he shall wear. Shoes are an important item. It is an army maxim that a soldier is no better than his feet. England keeps her "Tommies" comfortably shod, with socks to wear, as does the United States. But continental soldiers must "find" their own socks. Germany, so exact and up-to-date in most military matters, is weak on shoes. The German soldier is called the worst shod fighter in Europe.

It is in diet, however, that the medical staff scores heaviest. It deals in calories. A calorie is a standard heat unit. It is the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a kilogram of water from zero to one degree, Centigrade. The daily field ration of different soldiers is as follows:

Russia—4,922
France—3,240
England—3,292
Germany—3,147
Austria—2,620

Thus the calorie allowance in the Dual Alliance is lowest of all, while the Russian soldier gets the most calories in his daily food. Whether his government is more liberal or whether the "Moujik" requires more remains to be explained.

Military medical men declare, however, that this lower calorie rate will tell against the Dual Alliance in the end.

LEGS COFFEE MILL.

The British ration, which stands midway in calorie value, includes one pound of bread and three-quarters of a pound of fresh meat or 12 ounces of preserved meat. He is allowed 12 cents a day to buy vegetables. For drink the Britisher has his beloved tea—twenty-two hundredths of an ounce daily. The European soldier prefers coffee. The French soldier even has a little coffee mill.

The soldier lugs on the march or in battle the following equipment:

Rifle and bayonet (nine pounds).
Ammunition.
Intrenching tool.
Uniform.
Change of underwear.
Identification disk.
First-aid kit.
Food, including emergency ration.
Water bottle.
Mess tin, knife, fork and spoon.
Knapsack, belt and braces.
Great coat.
Half-shelter tent.
Toilet articles and spare linen.

On the British soldier this weighs forty-seven pounds. German thirty-eight. French forty-four, as the Briton carries never less than one hundred and fifty rounds of ammunition. But the Russian soldier, who usually has longer distances to march, gets out with four days' rations and extra ammunition, so his entire equipment weighs seventy-two pounds.

The first-aid kit is the medical staff's pet provision. It is a sealed tin box, containing bandages, gauze and adhesive plaster. It is packed so that, when the soldier applies it, his hands do not come in contact with any part that rests on the wound. This is to prevent infection. It also checks hemorrhage, the third great cause of battle deaths.

If the soldier is killed outright or dies of his wounds, the medical staff can do only three more for him—bury him scientifically. This has been figured down so finely that a burying squad of 500 men is supposed to inter bodies at the rate of 146 per hour after the cadavers have been collected into convenient piles.

PERSONALITIES IN THE GREAT WAR

GENERAL LA CROIX, a former commander-in-chief of the French army, says: "The German advance must soon end. One step gained against France is lost against Russia."

KING GEORGE of England has given up horseback riding, and is suffering from sleepless nights.

KING CHARLES of Roumania is reported ill and is said to plan to abdicate his throne.

HONORABLE ARCHER WINDSOR-OLIVE, second son of the Earl of Plymouth, a lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards, was wounded at Mons.

THE KAISER, motoring along the Doberritz road in Berlin was halted by vigilant sentries and identified before being allowed to proceed.

THE YOUNG DUKE OF BRUNSWICK, who is both a German noble and a British Prince, has asked the Kaiser that he be allowed to remain neutral. Whatever course he takes, it is said, he is liable to execution as a traitor by one country or the other.

M. MILLERAUD, French Minister of War, has stopped many editions of the Paris newspapers "to protect the nerves of the people."

WINSTON CHURCHILL, his assistant Admiral Von Tirpitz, head of the German navy, that his son was captured, safe and sound, in the battle of Heligoland Bight.

REV. DR. JAMES YEALE, professor at St. Bernard's Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., and just back from Ireland, says: "Irish spirit and Irish loyalty have risen to the occasion. Ireland's stout hearts are beating to the tune of England's drums."

AMBASSADOR BERNSTORFF, German representative at Washington, says: "If bombs have been dropped in Paris they were aimed at the fortifications. To drop bombs on women and children would violate German tradition."

SIR HIRAM MAXIM suggests that England's wealthy men finance an army of a million in the field.

GOVERNOR GLYNN of New York has been asked to forbid American aviators flying from that State over the Canada line.

CAPTAIN BARCLAY WARBURTON of Wyncote, Pa., just in London from Russia, says: "The Russian mobilization worked like a clock. A friend in one day counted 900 troop trains moving on schedule."

ROBERT BACON, former ambassador to France, has given $1,000 to the French-American relief committee.

CROWN PRINCE RUPRECHT of Bavaria, commanding a German army, thus commented on the death of his son, Prince Luitpold, in the field: "Duty commands action, not fears, at the present time."

AMATEUR GOLFERS OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY OVER EKWANOK COURSE

MATTY BALDWIN AND MURPHY IN TITLE BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

MATTY BALDWIN, Charlestown's esteemed fighting baker, will defend the little old New England lightweight championship at the Atlas A. A. tomorrow night. Matthew will be opposed by Eddie Murphy, in a twelve-round bout and from where we review the fistic parade friend Baldwin will next be called out all his reserves or else the South Boston boy will break down his defenses and grind the championship.

We do not hesitate in stating that the contest should be a thrilling affair. Baldwin and Murphy have already fought twice and on each occasion put up a whirlwind engagement. The first tussle was declared a draw, but Murphy breezed in a winner in the second skirmish.

Even though Baldwin has never vanquished Murphy, he has a license to parade around with the New England lightweight title. After Murphy won the last honors with Baldwin he was conquered by Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea, who in turn succeed to bow to the power of the Bunker Hill veteran.

A tremendous amount of interest is being shown in tomorrow night's battle and a capacity crowd is expected to turn out to witness the festivities.

BALDWIN believes he will prove that he is the classiest lightweight in these parts. Matty has been preparing for the contest at his farm in Lynnfield and asserts that he is in fine condition. He informs us that he will force the fighting, as he does not believe that Murphy is able to show us his best when his opponent keeps crowding him all the time.

Matty has never been rated as a scientific boxer, but he has managed to outpoint some of the cleverest glove men in the business. His success against the scientific boxers is due to his aggressive tactics and excellent ring generalship. There are few boxers who know as much about the fine points of the boxing game as Baldwin. He has been earning a livelihood by the point of his fists during the past fifteen years and has profited by his long experience.

MURPHY is planning to fight at top speed throughout the contest. He displayed a great deal of his old-time footwork and ability to land stinging left jabs in the fast encounter with Gilbert Gallant and will probably try and box Baldwin. This was the method which Eddie adopted when he won from Baldwin at the Arena a year ago.

Both boys realize the importance of the whirl and will try their level best to win. The winner has been promised a bout with Leach Cross, the hard hitting New York dentist, who recently returned from California, where he scored an impressive victory over Joe Rivers.

GILBERT GALLANT will also be numbered among those present when Edward and Mathew exchange broadsides. The Chelsea youth will announce to the assembled multitudes that he would like to have a match with the victor. As Gallant is young and coming all the time, any man who grabs off the decision will be forced to give him recognition.

Johnny Glover of Somerville and Patsy DeLuca, who pastimes in the North End, will clash in the semi-final tussle of eight sessions.

THE boxing game should receive a big boom with twenty-round bouts in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Denver and New Orleans. In the past San Francisco and Los Angeles have been the only big cities which have been able to stage contests of this route. Long fights, however, are now permitted in Louisville, Kentucky, and consequently New Orleans and Denver are sure to be the scenes of many important ring battles. We will make life, one sweet dream, for the honorable boxers who will be able to play these big centres against each other. The lot of the promoters has been a hard one so far, but it will be even worse now that the champions can perform in New Orleans or Denver if the powers that be in California refuse to agree to their terms.

THE promoters will have a difficult task securing high class talent. A few years ago there was an abundance of boxing talent, but conditions have changed and the local promoters are meeting all kinds of obstacles while trying to arrange attractive matches. The lightweight division has been the big money maker for the promoters in Boston during the past few years, but just now there is even a scarcity of star 135-135-pound glove men. Freddy Welsh, the former king of his class, but Willie Ritchie and Charley White are about the only glove men who would have a chance of winning if pitted against the crafty Englishman.

THERE is but little interest in the bantamweight division, as "Kid" Williams outclasses the little men in the featherweight class Johnny Kilbane is head and shoulders above all of his rivals with the possible exception of Abe Attell, who will soon meets in a championship battle in California next month.

THE welterweight class has been in a muddle for several years and there is not a man in sight at this section. The middleweight class is little better off, although a number of promising 158-pounders have come to the front recently and should help to solve the middleweight problem. As for the heavyweights—well, the less said about these big gentlemen the better for all concerned. Sam Langford still manages to sweep all before him, but Sam is getting old. Looks like a coming star. But as for the rest of the crowd, they are either going back or never were entitled to serious consideration from those young men who enjoy a little game of fisticuffs.

UNITED STATES WILL LEAD IN TENNIS-CAMP

Written Expressly for Boston American.

By WALTER CAMP.

Youth will be served. This is the handwriting on the wall looming up all the time in the vision of any former champion, who althought he may never have thought with anything but confidence of himself and his chances, suddenly finds the man on the other side of the net again unaccountably and exasperatingly active. Can it be that it is only the contrast between his lessening powers and merely the average of youthful vigor?

Brookes found this in the case of McLoughlin and all his veteran skill, adaptability, coolness and headwork availed him nothing against the untiring impetuousity (tempered it should be noted with excellent restraint when necessary) of the youthful Californian. And that is the story of the ages. Australia and Great Britain must develop young players or their former greatness will suffer eclipse.

PROUD OF MAURICE McLOUGHLIN.

We lost the Davis Cup but we were not; it is a wonder that there were truly proud of McLoughlin and his victories over both Brookes and Wilding. Outside the lessons of the play an excellent opportunity was offered for comparison between Wilding, the English amateur champion paradise, and Forest Hills, the American Courts. Naturally, Wimbledon has certain advantages due to the knowledge coming from far greater length of experience. But the committee at Forest Hills Club are to be congratulated upon the excellent arrangements made here. It was far easier with one exception, which I will touch on later) to reach one's seat in the stands at Forest Hills from New York, than it was the same position in the stands at Wimbledon, surprising from London.

From London to Wimbledon it is necessary to change cars on the underground once and usually twice. Then there is a half mile to ride or walk to reach the courts. From New York to Forest Hills is a ride on the railroad not quite as long as on the underground trip from London to Wimbledon, and without change of cars, and when one reaches the station he finds himself practically on the tennis courts. It may be contended that the difficulty of reaching Wimbledon is an advantage in that it does diminish the number who wish to attend, and hence helps in keeping the crowds down.

Now, as to the stands. Wimbledon has a large expanse of covered stand as well as open, but of course, nothing like the size of those erected this season at Forest Hills. There is also considerable standing room at Wimbledon.

There is only one main center court whereas at Forest Hills there are four. At Wimbledon it would have been necessary for McLoughlin and Brookes to have followed Williams and Wilding on the same court, whereas at Forest Hills a second match was played on a new court that was not torn up by the spikes. The crowd at Wimbledon is perfectly free in its applause, but it is a tennis crowd and they are thoroughly conversant with good tennis and the applause, especially this year at any rate, was for good strokes and not for any favorite.

The one thing that seems to impress a Wimbledon crowd and draw forth their applause is for a man who is behind to work up to the front. That is practically the only occasion into which one seems to enter any personal desire to see one man triumph over another. The judges are for the most part well experienced and their calling is sharp and decisive. They call the shots out sharply the moment the ball strikes, somehow we all of us become convinced that his judgment is accurate, at any rate that he saw it and to his vision there is no question about its being out. That satisfies players and spectators, and even though there might have been some mistakes in calls at Wimbledon there was no lack of decision about them.

The one heat was for the most part greater at Wimbledon, there being two or three days there when it was far beyond anything we had here. The one blight in the whole arrangement at Forest Hills was the evident lack of appreciation of the situation on the first day on the part of the railroad officials at the Pennsylvania Station of the Long Island.

FANS DISCREDIT BOSS' CHARGES AGAINST LAJOIE

By FRANK MENKE.

There are few fans in the country today who can believe the charges brought by Manager Joe Birmingham of the Naps that Larry Lajoie has laid down on him—that the great Frenchman has not given the club the best that was in him.

Those who know Lajoie personally and those who know him only through his record as a ball player cannot believe that Birmingham's charges are founded on fact. For eighteen years Lajoie has been in big league baseball and during all those years he has been a credit and an honor to the game. For eighteen years not a breath of scandal has fluttered about his name.

And now comes Birmingham, disgruntled and angered because he is the leader of a tail-end team and attempts to blacken the name of a man who has done a hundred times more for baseball than he ever has done or ever will do, and whose memory will live and be cherished for decades after Birmingham has been forgotten.

Does Birmingham wish to get rid of Lajoie because he fears that the veteran second baseman may supplant him as manager? There are some who feel that this might be the underlying cause for Birmingham's charges against the veteran. Several months ago a report was current that such a change would take place. Birmingham is said to have a contract that still has two years to run, but managers are not always retained for the full length of their contract.

None of those who know the great Frenchman intimately can believe for one moment that he would deliberately plot against any man. Lajoie stacks up as a man, clean, white straight, and one who had given the best that is in him to his superiors for eighteen years. Certain it seems that now in the twilight of his wonderful career he could not change his nature and he would not sully his name by any quitting tactics.

Lajoie has not been hitting them out this year. His batting has been nothing like that of last year, but there has been nothing wrong with his fielding, nothing wrong with his throwing. He is still 16, despite his thirty-nine years, the most graceful fielder in the game, and he still ranks as one of the greatest defensive players in the big leagues.

Yale's New Bowl for Army-Navy Battle

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 31.—Yale is making an aggressive effort to secure the Army-Navy game for the new bowl, which will be finished at Yale Field in November. The Yale football officials urge the fact that the structure will accommodate some 72,000 people, about 25,000 more than can be placed in other stands in this country, and that the only possible disadvantage to the selection of the place is its distance from Annapolis.

TEN GAMES IN SIX-DAY PROGRAM THIS WEEK FOR CARRIGAN'S RED SOX

BRAVES HEADED HOMEWARD AFTER SUCCESSFUL SWEEP OF THE WESTERN CIRCUIT

BRAVES HEADED FOR HOME AFTER WESTERN SWEEP

By NICK FLATLEY.

After another successful sweep through the West that has put them in the pennant hunt, favorites in fact, right down to the finish, just as their first swing around the trails started them to the top, the sensational, surprising Braves are headed for the East.

They rest secure in second place, but half a game behind the Giants. Though they do not play today they can go into a tie for first place if the Giants lose to the Pirates.

Yesterday, they wound up their season's work in the far parts by polishing off the Cardinals and putting that scrappy bunch down where it's mighty doubtful if they ever will come back.

The Giants, who seem to have reversed something of their old form, chalked another defeat on the Cubs, the new O'Day outfit is also mornassed a bit down at the foot of the first division.

SETTLE IT AT HOME.

With but a half game between them, the champion of other years and the gamest team in all baseball history are due to have their fight out on their own battlefields.

The first big engagement will be staged here in Boston on Labor Day. When, with pleasant weather, the biggest crowds that ever turned out in Boston will undoubtedly watch the Braves and the Giants engage in a two-game clash, one in the morning and the second in the afternoon.

No matter what happens during the remainder of the week, the Stallings stars are sure to come home in a position where they can get within reach of the Giants, if not pass them, by the home series. With an even break in luck, at Philadelphia, where they play the latter part of the present week, the Christmas drill come home right up with the Giants.

Even though beaten badly in Philly, and such a catastrophy is very unlikely to happen, the Braves will still be within hailing distance.

NEXT PLAY PHILLIES.

While the Braves, after spending today on the road and tomorrow getting in a welcome rest, open a five-game engagement with the Doves the following day, the Giants will be playing the Dodgers at Brooklyn.

On their present form, neither of the second-division outfits can be looked upon to halt the Big Leaders. The Giants have won seven of their twelve games with the Brooklyns, while the Braves have only gathered four of a dozen* with the Quakers, Odd games were all pulled in those star-off days before the Climbers took their stand at the world on five-four out of five from the Phillies would just about be enough. let the heroes turn homeward in just the proper fighting spirit and open with the Giants.

The leaders, with a slender half-game margin, have a chance today to gain a bit on Jack Slattery's Pirates. A win will give them a full game lead, while a loss would bring them back to a tie with the Giants. And that McGraw will have to depend on Pfeffer and Perritt to come to the rescue and unless whichever one is called shows a lot of improvement, the Pirates have an even chance to root out.

MAY TIE GIANTS.

Right through the season the Braves have gained on the days they have laid off, as the Giants have almost invariably picked them on successive to fall down. May they continue so to do.

Here's how the teams stand now, with yesterday's battles out of the way:

| | W. | L. | Behind |
|---|---|---|---|
| New York | 83 | 50 | Leader |
| Braves | 83 | 51 | ½ game |
| Cardinals | 82 | 52 | 1½ games |
| Cubs | 81 | 57 | 4½ games |

Two days without baseball, even though one of them must necessarily be spent on the road will be a wonderful help for the Boston players, who have been smashing along in a furious clip for just about eight weeks, the pitchers especially will be helped by the rest, and Manager Stallings will have his famous "Big Three" in shape to step into the wing coming into the locker regularly.

"BIG THREE" READY.

Naturally, Miracle George will lay his plans to have the trio of ace flingers—Rudolph, James and Tyler—perform in the three New York frays. A similar plan worked out fairly well over in Gotham a few weeks ago, as will doubtless be recalled.

Against the Doubts the Braves will have to play one double-header, and chances are Wednesday, when the series opens, will be the day.

Dick Rudolph, who will have had almost a week's rest, will doubtless start the first game. For the second, while he could call on James, Stallings is much more likely to run in either Strand or Cruicher. With his every-third appearance, the first named youngster comes up more and more like a great pitcher.

MORE GLORY FOR TYLER.

George Tyler, who added new laurels to his already bare crown by blanking the Cardinals with a single hit yesterday, can easily work Thursday and then come over to Boston and prepare for the holiday morning game against the Giants. Should it be chased in for the Thursday fray, but, unless the Braves lose both Wednesday, Tyler seems much more likely to be required a longer layoff than Big Bill.

For the Friday battle James will be pitted, and he can then be right as a trivet for the afternoon of the 5th.

The closing game of the Philadelphia series would then naturally fall to the lot of Rudolph, who could, on the form he has shown all season long, easily work that day and be ready to close up the engagement with the Giants here on Tuesday. For that matter, if most of the previous Philly games have fallen to Boston's lot, any one of the Brave youngsters will be likely to have a chance to hit himself loose next Saturday.

Of course trying to tell how a manager is going to use his pitchers when the series opened.

TEN GAMES IN SIX DAYS THE SOX PROGRAM

The Red Sox have their work cut out this week, with ten games in six days, starting today with St. Louis.

Tomorrow and Wednesday the same program will be carried out against the Brownies, while on Thursday the Mackmen open here in a double bill.

The outlook is none too easy for the Sox pitchers, and especially the one of them will see action. "Dutch" Leonard and Ernie Shore are booked to pitch a pair of games, while the other six contests will be divided between Vean Gregg, Ray Collins, George Foster, Joe Wood and possibly Hugh Bedient. Collins has at times been bothersome to the Macks, and may work in two games, figuring in one of this afternoon's combats.

The Brownies are anxious to win a place higher up in the standing than they now hold, as the Cardinals have been getting the call with the fans at St. Louis. Branch Rickey who guides the destinies of the Mound City team, has a pitching staff that has troubled the Carrigan clan. The southpaws, Carl Hamilton, Leverenz and Cecil Weltman, are expected to make things interesting. The other flingers, the best of whom is James, are not scoffed at.

It is regretted that the Red Sox are called up to play half a dozen games on three days previous to meeting the Macks.

It was hoped that the two leaders would be able to meet on as nearly an equal footing as was possible.

The Macks have an off day Wednesday, but will play an exhibition game at Manchester, N. H., against the Brooklyn team, which recently won the Manufacturers' league title.

Friday and Saturday single games are scheduled at Fenway Park.

Welsh Will Train with Harry Stone

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Harry Stone, who is preparing for his coming battle with Phil Bloom next week, will probably have the aid of Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, during the next few days.

Welsh, who has just arrived from England, intends to do some light boxing right along, and considers Stone the most likely partner around here.

O'Connor After Title.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Patrick J. O'Connor of the Pastime A. C. will attempt to wrest the title from F. C. Thomson, the Californian and world's record holder, when the 100-mile contest is staged at Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 12.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

AFTER all is said and done it is the baseball fan himself that will have to decide for himself which team in the National League will be highest on the percentage column when the season closes on October 7.

If he takes a tip from the managers of the leading clubs he will be badly mixed—unless he picks the right manager. All three of them believe their teams will win the flag. Stallings pretends to say he is not thinking of the pennant (nobody believes him), but is trying to win each game as it is played. He declares his team will not "scratch" as other managers have asserted.

MANAGER McGRAW was no elated when his team won two straight games that he declared the Giants' slump was at an end and that from now on it would be an upward march for the three-time winners of the National League pennant.

MANAGER O'DAY has nothing whatever to say. Hank doesn't talk. He wears an expressionless face and his supporters do not even accuse him of trying to look wise. But, of course, he is itching for that flag. After he had piloted the Cincinnati Reds to fourth place two years ago, he was canned by the owners of the club. He hopped for a chance to demonstrate that the Cincinnati people had made a grievous mistake in not giving him further opportunity to deliver the goods and finally got his chance when the late Charles Webb Murphy canned Evers and appointed him as manager of the Cubs.

O'DAY has a hard gang of veterans to handle, but he got his club up in second place before the season was half over. Then it had a slump but came back again and now threatens the leaders.

The Cubs are torn by dissentions and cliques, but they will keep aegoing to the bitter end. Why? Because of their weak series coin. While there is a chance to get in for a division of the big spoils they will play their heads off no matter how much the players hate each other.

THE same holds good for all the leading teams. The world's series money certainly keeps them all nerved up.

A CURIOUS thing in a baseball manager's makeup is his belief that if his team has gone through one slump and recovered it is safe for the remainder of the season. But from an outsider's viewpoint there is no good reason why a team cannot have two slumps, or three slumps, or four slumps in a season.

Every mother's son among the managers now believes his team will steadily win games from now on. McGraw thinks so and so does the manager of the Cardinal club. Hope springs eternal in the baseball manager's breast. It is well that this is so.

WE in Boston expect our Boston Nationals to keep aegoing and eventually win the pennant. But New York fans and St. Louis fans and Chicago fans expect the same thing of their team. We do not believe the Braves will crack, because the Braves proved their gameness already. Gameness wins many a baseball battle in the face of great odds. There is nothing to worry about as yet. Stallings' team is well fortified in every department and there is a long campaign to come on home grounds. The situation looks very favorable.

BUT there are quite a few double-headers to be played by our boys. Managers and players do not relish doubling dates. The Braves have the following bargain daze to work off: September 2, at Philadelphia; September 7, Giants at Boston; September 9 and 10, Phillies at Boston; September 23 and 24, Cincinnati at Boston; September 26, Chicago at Boston; September 30, at New York and October 5, at Brooklyn.

HUB PERDUE, the "Gallatin Squash," tells a good one on the New York Giants.

"Those New Yorkers are suffering from enlarged craniums" declared Hub. "Before Stallings took charge of the Boston Braves the team was a joke outfit. I was one of the jokes. Guess that's the reason McGraw's men used to make fun of me. One day I was passing the Giants' coop in the Polo Grounds. Larry Doyle stuck his head out of the window collar and I greeted him thusly:

"'Hello, Larry.'

"'Who's that big yap?'" said Doyle, ignoring me completely, and addressing his remarks to Mike Donlin.

"Oh, he's a bushel the Boston club got in some sort of a trade with Chicago," replied Donlin.

"Last time the Cards called at the Polo grounds, Donlin saw me warming up and handed out a line of chatter something like this:

"'Going great guns, eh, Hub? I always knew you were a great pitcher.'

"Funny how those New Yorkers 'sense' to a winning aggregation. The Cardinals looked dangerous to 'em. I guess Donlin thought it good policy to soft soap me a little. Thought I might go easy with 'em."

COLLINS BACK TO RACE WILEY AT BEACH OVAL

Two nights of racing are down on the program this week at the Revere Cycle Track, tomorrow and Saturday, during which nine of the world's leading professionals will be seen in action.

Included in this number are George Wiley, Clarence Carman, Hardy Kappler, Werth Mitten, Jimmy Moran, Elmer Collins, Alfred Grenda, Frank Cavanaugh and Ceasar Moretti.

Tomorrow night a double feature is billed, besides the regular list of amateur and professional events. They will meet Collins in a match race behind the motors to be decided in ten-mile heats, while Grenda will take the boards against Moretti and Cavanaugh in a special sprint. The latter event will be decided on points.

The national middle distance championship race of fifty miles, which was postponed last Saturday, will be run off next Saturday night. George Wiley, Mitten, Moran, Kappler and Walthour will contest for the title.

Collins rides his first race in many weeks at the Beach oval tomorrow evening. The last time he rode he was leading his field and carrying it along at a terrific pace when he met with an accident. He has agreed by heralded by the rest, the good effects of which he has shown in practice for the past few weeks.

Winchester Country Club Golf Schedule

Fall play at the Winchester Country Club will commence Monday, September 7 with a tournament of mixed foursomes.

The Fall schedule arranged to date is as follows:

Monday, September 7—Mixed foursomes.
Tuesday, September 8—Bat selected. Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Hunt.
Tuesday, September 15—Championship match play.
Friday, September 22—Medal play. Mrs. Vinal and Mrs. Pike.
Tuesday, September 29—Team match. Mrs. Vinal and Mrs. Pike.
Tuesday, October 6—Bat selected. Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Hunt.
Monday, October 12—Mixed foursomes.
Last competition, October 20—One-club match. Mrs. Holbrook and Mrs. Brown.
Tuesday, October 27—Medal play. Mrs. Pike and Mrs. Hunt.

N. Y. Horse Show Put Over by War

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The New York horse show will not be held this year. Directors of the association announced that because of the European War it was advisable to postpone the event for another year.

Last year, seven countries had entries in the show. In England, France, Belgium, Germany, Russia, Austria and Italy every horse has been commandeered, according to advices received here. The blooded animals were turned over to the officers of the crack regiments.

GOLFERS OPEN TITLE TOURNEY AT EKWANOK

MANCHESTER, Vt., Aug. 21.—Play in the twentieth amateur golf championship of the United States opens today with an eighteen-hole medal qualifying round with the best sixty-four to come the following day for play with another eighteen-hole medal round.

The best thirty-two cards will be drawn for one round of match play tomorrow afternoon, after which the match play will be at thirty-six holes for four successive days.

The field of players, like the course, is a premier one. Among those to dispute the title now held by Jerome D. Travers of Upper Montclair, N. J., are four former champions, W. C. Travis of New York, E. M. Byers and W. C. Gardner of Chicago, as well as Francis Ouimet of Boston, the open champion of 1913, and Charles Evans of Chicago, holder of the title in Western titles. Travers, Evans and Ouimet are equal favorites for the event.

Jimmy Moran Wins N. Y. Cycle Derby

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—James V. Moran, the veteran cyclist of Chelsea, Mass., won the world's middle distance Derby in connection with the international championship, run before a big contested at the Newark track. The race was tandems paced, and of fifty kilometres (thirty-one miles). Those who started besides Moran were George Wiley, the American motor-paced champion; Clarence Carman of Jamaica, L. I., and Bobby Walthour.

Wiley in the eighth mile had the misfortune to lose a lap, when his pacing machine blew a rear tire and threw him to the track.

Three Swimmers in Trip to Graves Light

Maisie Brophy of South Boston has joined the honor roll of Boston's swimmers after a most remarkable and plucky exhibition, covering the course from the government pier at Castle Island to the Graves Light, more than eight miles, in the remarkable time of 3h. 50m.

Two other swimmers also covered the course, William R. Kessener of the L Street Swimmers' Club, who made the second, Tommy Ford of Charlestown Bridge to the Graves in 4h. 25m., and Sam Richards, also of the L Street Swimmers' Club.

Double Win Gives Papesca Bike Title

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—J. Papesca won two races in the weekly series of the New England Wheelmen on the Speedway at Pelham Park. In the Cork series, Papesca started behind the motors and in fifteen and covered the distance, six and a quarter miles, in 12:31; S. Young (1:30) was second and D. Hoyes, third and fourth respectively. The final event, twelve miles, found twenty seconds handicap. Papesca a second victory was in the one-mile paced race, the finals following trials. The winner's time was 1:45.

Arrangements Made for Soccer Season

Arrangements have been completed for the opening of the soccer season of the Boston and District League. Referees were allotted for Saturday games and everything is in readiness for the official opening.

The interest in soccer hereabouts is fast assuming large proportions, and the fact that 240 extra forms, above the allotted number, have been issued to the different clubs is considered proof that soccer is surely coming to be very popular.

Alcready to Meet McPhee on the Mat

"Scotty" McPhee, the Worcester heavyweight, and Alcready, the husky Bavarian, will meet in a finish at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night, under catch-as-catch-can rules, two falls out of three. The winner will be pitted against Pat Connolly, the Irish title holder, a week later. George Tuohey will referee.

GEORGE E. PHAIR SAYS:

SAVED!

It is a member of the Giants.

A pitching man is he.

He winks his eye, this cheerful guy,

And chortles in his glee.

"There was a time," the pitcher said,

"When I was sad and drear.

But now I gaze upon the Braves

And I am full of cheer."

"And so you think it is a cinche

To beat them out," said I.

He looked at me most wond'ringly,

And gaily made reply:

"I think the Braves will win the race,

And that is why I cheer,

For then I will not have to face

The Connemacks this year."

Welsh Will Train with Harry Stone

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Harry Stone, who is preparing for his coming battle with Phil Bloom next week, will probably have the aid of Freddie Welsh, the lightweight champion, during the next few days.

Welsh, who has just arrived from England, intends to do some light boxing right along, and considers Stone the most likely partner around here.

O'Connor After Title.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Patrick J. O'Connor of the Pastime A. C. will attempt to wrest the title from F. C. Thomson, the Californian and world's record holder, when the 100-mile contest is staged at Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 12.

EAST VS. WEST IN BIG TENNIS MATCHES TODAY

NEWPORT, Aug. 21.—Two San Francisco racquet wielders and two Philadelphians are still left in the running in the tennis championship interrupted by Saturday's rain, and it looks as if one of each will be eliminated in today's semi-finals.

Ellis Fottrell will represent the West in the top half against Richard Norris Williams, 2d, while in the lower section the draw Maurice E. McLoughlin is pitted against W. J. Clothier. McLoughlin and Williams came through to the final round last year, and it is expected generally that they will repeat.

Although Clothier has been playing some very good tennis throughout the tournament, it has not been the kind that should give McLoughlin any trouble, for the champion was never in better form.

Fottrell should make Williams fight hard for victory and there is a possibility that the Californian may nose out his rival. Followers of the game believe that if Williams sticks to his usual method of playing from back court he may find it hard to win, for Fottrell is exceptionally strong in fore court.

Last Chance Today to Enter Hibernian Sporting Carnival

Entries for the amateur track and field athletic meet to be held in conjunction with the field day of the Hibernians of Suffolk County at the Locust street grounds on Labor Day close today, but any entries mailed befor midnight tonight will be accepted. What a Really Pretty Girl Thinks of Artificial Adornment

Miss White in two charming poses

THERE is a little cancer who proudly asserts that the American girl is not pretty. "At least not pretty in the right way, and whatever looks she has are not lasting." And this little maiden who has such very decided views on the American type is Miss Nora White.

"Here in America," she said, with her pretty foreign accent, "the old ladies are really more attractive than the young girls. For, at least, we must admit that the artifices they resort to make up to them in some small respect for the youth they have lost and can never have again. But the young girls are horrible in their distorted ideas of beauty. They appear on the street as young as eighteen with makeup enough on their little girl faces to start a drug store. I have never seen anything more revolting. Don't they know what they are doing? Can't they realize that nature in the one beautiful thing in the universe, and they cover up their natural looks as though they were something to be ashamed of?

"The great trouble with American women lies in the fact that they are one and all living beyond their incomes. This brings worry. Just like their beauty, everything is external. all kinds of sham with its glitter and tinsel is piled on thick so that the heartache underneath is hidden. And with all this sordidness underneath, gnawing continually at the foundation of things, how can a woman keep her youth? And without her youth, no wonder she is compelled to cover up the wrinkles with these awful cosmetics.

"And then with these women all straving to outdo each other in shewiness, how can America hope for the right kind of men? I have heard young girls of today remark that if they were loud gowns and put on plenty of paint so that they could attract sufficient attention they would never need to look out for an escort. What is youth to the American girl? Absolutely nothing but a snare. It amounts to nothing, because it is too farcical to last any appreciable amount of time.

"In Europe the girls are always fresh and young. They never have any worries, because they never live beyond their incomes. They don't use make-up because they don't need it, and they are therefore natural. They have happy, healthy, normal good times—good times that are really deserving of the name. Not a few hours of agony to be lived through before the sham can be put aside and the natural resumed until the next engagement.

"I really don't know what can be done to better conditions over here. I should think if the American girl knew of the impression she was creating she might decide to take a bold stand for the protection of healthy normal girlhood. Once in a while you may see a normal girl here —it is like passing an oasis in the desert. I never appreciated the beauty of my country-women half so much till I came to this country and saw the American type. Then I thanked my lucky stars that I had not been born in America."

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

THARE is no use talking, sed Ma, the wimmin is gitting moar & moar independent every day. I have jest been reeding about a brav woman who left her husband & went out into the world to ern her own living as a saleswoman, leeving her welthy husband to think at cuver.

Was he crule to her? sed Pa.

I shud say he was, according to this artikel, sed Ma. The artikel says that he wuddent let her wear a purpel wig & some kind of a new Paris gown wich she had bought to please him.

Did she leeve him for that? sed Pa.

That's what she did, sed Ma, & I glory in her spunk.

You can call it spunk if you want to, sed Pa, but I call it bunk. As soon as she finds out that the whole wurld isent crazy to tuk her part & give her a swell possishun sumware else will be back at the old homested, reddy & willing to git along with the hair wich Nater put on her head, & satisfied to ware gowns moar like the kind her mother wore beefoar her.

I dount beleeve she will ever go back to him, sed Ma. This artikel says that until he sends her a purpel PRIVE a gown like the one he wuddent let her ware, & tells her to put and the & cum back to her lonesome ow ... ed, she will stay away, & he will run around & do it, too, sed Ma.

does he is a simp, sed Pa.

Ma.

Pa sed; a boob, a bonehed, a sucker. Why sed Pa if I had a wife like that I wud be so glad to have her stay away that I am afrade I wud get foolish laffing from sheer joy.

Then you do not think that a husband shud yeeld to his wife in a serius case like that? sed Ma.

He ought to dis first, sed Pa. Why, he sed, I was reeding jest the other day about a woman wich put on one of them new Paris gowns wich was so tite around the bottom that was she tried to take a quick step toward the stairs she fell down & brok her neck.

I dount see anything very humorus about that, sed Ma.

Nor me, sed Pa. It is tragic. It is awful to think that wimmen are getting so loony about Paris fashuns that they can't keep thare American necks and thare husbands from getting broke. It jestly proves, sed he, knows, Pa sed.

Well, sed Ma, to get back to this lady wich went away, it only shows that the time is cumming wen woman shall no longer be under the yoke of man. Thare is a time cumming wen the wimmen shall help the men rule the wurld, wen they shall vote like the men, hold office like the men, & be as well shel to ... the men. You dount doubt that, do you, sed Ma.

No, sed Pa, that time is cumming, I guess, but it will be funny, funder, the wimmen will not be wearing Paris gowns & cultiard wigs. No, they will not be style crazy and longe crazy. They will be moar like the wimmen now dad & gone, sed Pa, moar like our mothers & grandmothers. After they have passed thru thare present loony stage, & calm back to erth, Pa sed, any time they want to vote all they have to do is to drop the men a line. That is all I have to say, sed Pa, except that if that man talks that wife of his back the way she wants him to, he is a sucker.

Better Kept Quiet

Lord Boots, who was famous for his long and flowing beard, was disturbed one evening, when he thought all the servants were in bed, by shouts of laughter and much cheering. Summoning his valet, he demanded angrily what all the noise was about.

"We were only having a little game among ourselves, my lord," the man answered, looking rather worried.

"What was the game?" demanded the noble gentleman.

"Kindly answer my question, Wilson! I desire to know what could have caused so much coarse laughter."

"Well, my lord, if you insist, I have no choice. We had blindfolded the cook, and were taking it in turns to kiss her, and she had to guess who it was each time. The under housemaid held up the men to her face, and—this is what we were laughing at, my lord—cook called out, 'Oh, how dare you, your lordship!'"

Mrs. Hale Goes to Bid Constance Goodnight and Finds Her Niece Has Gone.

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER XL.

"I MUST go now, dearest," Ralph said.

He glanced at his watch in the light gleaming from the open front door. Peter would be awaiting him by this time that he could walk to the place of meeting. He must not linger here a minute longer.

"I wish you did not have to go so soon," Edith regretted.

"I wish so, too," he responded. "But, dear, you know that when mother is not so well I feel I ought to set aside my own preference."

"And mine, too!" the girl suggested with a little pout.

Of course he assured her that were he to follow the dictates of his heart he would stay right here. She said, "Oh, that is all right!" and allowed him to kiss her good-night. Yet as the man walked toward the gate he hoped that Edith was not going to prove to be an exacting fiancee, while the girl, going into the house, found herself somewhat pained that Ralph could leave her so easily even at his mother's bidding. She felt that if he loved her as he should love her he should know no superior claim on his affections and time.

John Hale looked up in surprise as his daughter entered the library.

"Where's Ralph?" he asked.

"Gone home, she informed him. When as she saw her father's face darkien, she hastened to explain her lover's departure. It was one thing for her to rave about and quite another for her parent to do so. "His mother is not well," she said. "When he called up his house a while ago Peter told him his mother was asking for him. Of course, dad, it was his duty to go to her."

FATHER NOT SATISFIED.

John Hale started to speak, then glanced at his wife and checked himself. But the girl knew he was not satisfied with her explanation. Before she could say anything more there was a sound of someone coming up on the veranda and she turned back to see who it was.

"May I come in?" asked a cheery voice, and Edward Dayton came into the hall.

"Indeed you may!" explained Edith, smiling bright. She remembered in a flash how this man had championed her on the evening of the never-to-be-forgotten cooperative dinner, and her heart warmed to him.

"It is an unconscionable late hour to call, I know," Dayton said later as Mr. and Mrs. Hale welcomed him. "But I saw your hospitable light shining from all the lighted windows as I passed along the street down there, and I was sure you were not retiring yet—and this knowledge tempted me just to run in and see you for a few minutes."

"I am glad you came," Edith told him frankly. "It is too early to go to bed, and I was just wishing I had a pleasant person to talk to."

Dayton looked at her with a mischievous smile. "I might not have had the temerity to come in," he teased, "if I had not seen Ralph Morgan hurrying down toward Cliff avenue a few moments ago. I knew that as he was not here I would not be poaching upon his preserves."

Edith inserted them, struck by an uncomfortable idea, asked quickly, "Where did you see you met him?"

"Down near Cliff avenue—probably on his way to the village for something he had forgotten, for he was walking so rapidly that he did not even see me."

"Yes," Edith agreed, "he had probably forgotten something in the village." She glanced at her father and the expression in his eyes did not quiet her feeling of apprehension. "Suppose we go out on the veranda for a while," she suggested to Dayton. "You don't mind, do you mother?"

"Certainly not, my dear," her mother replied. "I'm going to sit here with father and finish my book before I go upstairs."

FORGETS ABOUT RALPH.

Seated on the veranda with a companion who was an attentive listener and a good talker, Edith forgot, for a while, her perplexity with regard to Ralph's destination.

Not so her father. When, about twenty minutes' chat, Edward Dayton bade Edith and her parents good night and went home, John Hale detained his daughter in the hall for a moment. He spoke gravely and reluctantly.

"I had hoped that Ralph would stay to see Tom," he said. "As he did not, I telephoned to his house just now to tell him to come to us as soon as he could leave his mother. He was not at home—nor has he been at home since after dinner, his mother's maid said. She also said that her mistress is as well as usual this evening, and that she was not aware that any message had been sent from Mrs. Morgan to Mr. Ralph. I warned her not to tell Mrs. Morgan of my having telephoned, as it might make her anxious about Ralph."

"But, dad," the girl protested, "I know he meant to go right home after that his mother did send for him."

"Yet," her father interrupted her, "Ned Dayton saw him five minutes after he left here going toward Cliff avenue. I don't understand it—and I confess I don't like it."

"What do you mean?" the girl demanded indignantly. "Surely you don't mean to insinuate that he told me a deliberate lie—that he——"

She choked herself as her mother came out of the library.

"I've finished my book and I'm going to bed," announced the matron. "But first I'll stop in Connie's room and see how her head is. I hope she's asleep. Come to my room in half an hour, Edith, father and daughter stood silent at the foot of the stairs while the elderly woman went up, then they heard her enter Constance's room softly, heard her low-voiced query, heard her hurry across the room and open the door of her niece's dressing-room, then run across the floor to the head of the stairs.

"John! Edith!" she called excitedly, "where can Constance be? Her room is empty, so is her dressing-room—and her bed has not been slept in. Oh—my dressing can she be? Where CAN she be?"

The Art of Dressing

NO. 1.

The Folly of Trying to Cheat the Years by Wearing Unsuitable Gowns

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

A FEW days ago I rode out in the street car with a woman whose clothes spelled a giddy twenty, and whose poor wrinkled face betrayed her as sixty, although she had attempted to cover the traces of time with a coat of particolored paint. Most of the passengers were smiling slyly or openly grinning in ridicule of the sad old creature. But I thought her poor taste was almost tragic.

The very first rule of good dressing is to wear clothes suitable to your age. After that you must consider your coloring, figure, particular style and type. But it will lend you no chance to wear the smartest of clothes if they are babyish and intense in type, while you are evidently forty, or to lengthen your skirts and imitate the sophisticated cothes of a woman of thirty if you are only sixteen.

You may select clothes that keep you young looking or emphasize your youthful sweetness and freshness. But you must keep in your own generation in choosing your garments.

"Sweet sixteen" looks well in girlish and simple lines that show the her appear like the flower she is. She may wear hats turned up at the side and with a bridle line of black velvet across her smooth, white throat. She looks attractive in frilly skirts and baby waists. But let the wrinkled woman of forty or fifty from adopting these same clothes. They will make either woman a caricature.

Tailor-made suits of smart cut and dignified street costumes become the woman of mature charm, even as soft clinging silks and laces are a very lovely setting for the grandmother.

But nowadays many women wear clothes so far out of their own generation that they give an impression of being just ready for a masquerade.

It seems almost unbelievable that a woman of sixty will don a white shepherdess hat, a dress of lavender and white organdie cut very low as to its lacy neck and very high as to its scant skirts, fine silk stockings and rings and pins, jewels in the hair and gilt slippers, and then attired set off on a shopping expedition. But that is exactly what the poor old creature who inspired this article was doing a few days ago. And then in order to live down to her silly girlish clothes, she covered her wrinkled face with a thick paint and attempted to whitewash her wrinkled throat.

The moral effect of such clothes is bad. Old age claims no respect when it is ridiculous. It has no dignity.

But youth dressed in immature and elaborate clothes instead of in its own prettily simple garments is pathetic, too. The effect it produces is the absurd one of a little child dressed up in its mother's clothes. All the charm and sweetness and modesty of youth are well worth preserving. They cannot be kept alive in over-elaborate or sophisticated looking clothes. Youth must not dress in the clothes of a woman of the world.

Between the extremes of youth and age there are mistakes in dressing, but they are most glaring when the extremes illustrate the folly of garbing yourself out of your generation. Mother and daughter must not dress alike.

If you are a woman of dignified years, dress with dignity. If you are a child wait for the clothes of maturity until you have grown to womanhood. And if you are an old woman, don't give up one bit of the sweet and placid dignity of quiet, simple garments that will frame your face instead of making it a frame for glaring absurdities.

Keep in your generation. Dress as becomes your years. Make your clothes suit your time of life. That is the first rule of good dressing.

Very Confusing

Maisie had just returned from her Summer holiday full of good health and spirits, and was telling one of her girl friends about the happenings of the happy weeks.

Eventually she mentioned a young man whom she had met.

"And, Elsie," she exclaimed enthusiastically, "he was simply grand! So square, so upright, so highly polished. Do you know, there seemed to be a sympathetic tone"——

Just then Elsie interrupted. She hadn't yet been away for her holiday, and was feeling hot and tired and somewhat irritable.

"I say, Maisie," she asked wearily, "are you talking about a young man or a piano?"

Beautiful Art of Old Peru

Wonderful Examples of Exquisitely Colored Pottery Discovered by the Hearst Expedition and Now in the Possession of the American Museum

Nasca Pottery—Here is a figure holding fruit in each hand

This is a jar representing a bird resting on top of a gourd

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

NO more beautiful examples of the artistic skill that characterized the strange people who developed the prehistoric civilization of Peru have ever been seen than those presented by the collection of ancient pottery from the necropolis of Nasca, which was made by Dr. Uhle during the second Hearst expedition to Peru, and which has been presented to the American Museum in New York.

The photographs of these objects herewith shown do not convey a complete idea of their beauty because the latter is based especially upon the exquisite colors used in the decorations.

Nasca is situated about 220 miles south of Lima and 50 miles from the Pacific. It lies in a dry, sandy region, which does not appear ever to have been densely inhabited. Yet its pottery seems one of the four principal types shown by the ceramic art of the prehistoric inhabitants of Peru.

Mr. Charles W. Mead remarks that "a standing mystery in the archaeology of southern Peru is the fact that so many of the seats or ancient cultures are found in arid valleys where there is little or no running water and which are surrounded by extensive deserts. The immense cemeteries prove that these places once were populous, and yet there is nothing else to indicate that the climatic conditions were formerly much different from what they are today."

But the vanished people who dwelt there were, in their way, great and admirable artists. "Nasca pottery," says Mr. Mead, "is undoubtedly the most beautiful ware so far discovered in South America."

It is thin and very skilfully fired, but its preeminent excellence lies in the painted decorations. The colors are white, yellowish-white, yellow, red, orange-red, pink, deep-red, brown, light-blue, blue, violet, gray, and black. The decorative forms are drawn from the human figure, birds, fish, large animals of the cat tribe, mythological monsters and geometric designs.

The fact that these exquisitely decorated vessels were all intended to contain or carry water is suggestive, in connection with the arid condition of the country in which they were produced. Water and everything pertaining to water were objects of peculiar interest to a people dwelling in such a land. It was thought that even the dead would wish to have them ready at their sides, and so they were interred with the bodies of their owners. This superstition, instead of covering our idea of the ancient Peruvians, simply shows that they were on the same mental quality with some of the greatest peoples of the Old World.

Do You Know That—

Over 80,000 newspapers are now appearing at daily or weekly intervals in the various quarters of the globe. Of these considerably over one-half are printed in the English language, there being 23,000 in the United States and over 13,000 in the British Empire.

Margarine, the first artificial butter, was made at Poissy, in France, in 1869 for the first time. It was made from the fat of the kidneys and loins of cattle. Tallow, lard and olive and cottonseed oil are also used in the manufacture of various butterines. Cocoanut butter is largely used in Northern Europe.

Great Britain is the greatest butter-eater among nations. The English eat thirteen pounds a head a year, as against four pounds in France, eight pounds in Germany and two pounds in Russia.

The greatest beer drinkers are the Belgians, who consume forty-six gallons per head each year, while Englishmen drink twenty-six gallons and Germans twenty-two gallons per head annually. Frenchmen drink thirty-three gallons of wine in one year and Italians twenty-six gallons.

It has been estimated, by the officials of the various insurance companies in the United Kingdom, that the suffragettes were directly responsible for $1,000,000 worth of damage last year through fires alone.

GERMANS HERE UPHOLD CAUSE OF FATHERLAND

Germany's course in the European crisis was stoutly upheld at a meeting of 2,000 German-American citizens in Faneuil Hall, followed by an overflow meeting on the steps of the Quincy Market building. Resolutions approving the neutrality of the United States and declaring the war was forced on Germany were adopted.

The resolutions read:

Resolved, That we, American citizens residing in Greater Boston and representing different racial elements of the United States, particularly the German element, assembled in Faneuil Hall, approve unreservedly the policy of strictest neutrality in the present European conflict proclaimed by the President of the United States as solely compatible with the interests of the United States.

Resolved, That we sympathize with the German people and the German government in the present war which has been unnecessarily forced upon them by the aggressive jealousy of powerful nations.

Resolved, That we regret and condemn the unwarranted attacks upon the German people and government by a large part of the American press.

CRITICIZE JAPAN.

Resolved, That we see a great danger to the future of our country in the attack upon Germany by Japan as England's ally, which is clearly an attempt to dominate the Pacific politically and commercially to the detriment of the United States.

Robert Stern, corresponding secretary of the German-American Alliance, presided. Communications expressing sympathy were received from Congressman Richard Bartholdt of the Committee of Foreign Affairs in Washington, also from Jewish and other societies. Former Representative Frank Sellerlich, Professor A. J. Wells of Harvard, J. Freimann, K. J. Freeh, editor of the Staats of Worcester, and Alfred Williams were among the speakers. The Mayor and the Governor were praised for the stand they took in defending the right of free speech for the Germans, in the face of protests from other sources against holding the meeting.

ASK ONLY FAIR PLAY.

Robert Stern after a brief speech in German spoke first in English and said:

"It is with deepest regret that we feel ourselves obliged to meet here today for mutual consultation on account of the unjust attitude against everything German, which has now been somewhat modified through President Wilson's appeal for neutrality.

"A few very intelligent writers are possessed of a neutral view, but these are exceptions to the rule. To regard action as German-Americans is to be doubly deprived, because we propose us to resort to the unpleasant task of reminding the press what the Germans have done for America—and in fact for the whole world.

"We have been told that the papers are edited by Jews, and as such we become.

"As Americans, we boast our admiration for a good fighter for commercial competition, and because Germany has produced the world's best fighter we rejoice at seeing her knocked out. This is strange fair play. Germany fought against her own disintegration we fought for four and one-half years with the then welcome assistance of the barbarians, for the preservation of our Union, because we thought a whole was stronger than a part. How many needs her army to keep her union whole."

Matthew Cummings, past president of the A. O. H., represented the Irish National Volunteers. He said:

SLAVS ALSO PROTEST.

"I believe the majority of the Irish race in America are opposed to England in this necessary war of aggression which she is now waging against Germany."

MORE SHIPS NEEDED FOR TRADE BOOM

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

There was little change in the financial situation when the week began, but the trend was towards improvement. While foreign exchange rates were still high there were enough signs visible to justify a yield some encouragement that one of the most vexatious of problems is nearer solution. Their presence, according to one commentator, indicates that leaders are looking forward to continued improvement in foreign trade and exchange.

It is expected that the British government will announce to Parliament today what it has decided in regard to extension of the moratorium. Creditor exchange representatives from Holland and New York are expected to hold an important conference in New York this week with representatives of the exchange of the London city. They will, it is expected decide upon some means of settling the international problem left open when exchanges closed.

NO GOLD AGREEMENT REACHED.

No agreement has been reached between American and London bankers as to the payment in this country's obligations abroad. It is understood that foreigners still want gold payments and have not consented to a suggestion from New York that settlement from this side of the ocean should consist of a certain third in gold and that the remainder should be met later when exports of foodstuffs or other goods mightly largely offset the balance. There is more demand, it appears, for American gold than for grain or other supplies. Last week, according to the Bradstreet estimate, wheat shipments from this country totalled 8,297,000 bushels. This was an increase of nearly 1,000,000 as compared with the previous week's figures. It is questioned whether exports next week will be almost as much as those of last week. Most of the recent shipments have been upon contracts and covered by special credits. It is doubted if exporters are calling for large drafts which are to be entered into for awhile. The payment problem must be solved.

WHAT GERMANY OWES ENGLAND.

International credits are still demoralized. London, although moratorium exists in the United Kingdom, is trying to collect outside, particularly from this country. It is estimated that Germany owes England about 1500,000,000, which is of course incollectable now. England is also creditor to immense amounts from other continental countries. What the United has owes is problematical. In the past, but there is no disposition on the part of American bankers to foreclose on any such obligation, if this country possibly can pay its debts to agricultural products. The United States is in a much easier position to realize on grains than many foreigners realize. Large export portions. The result of recent wheat purchases in this country were captured wheat which was in the hands of speculators in England and not German ports. Most recent and direct purchases have been made from the United States and Canada. The British having now placed the United Kingdom on a satisfactory food basis, the Bank of England has increased its supply of gold this week.

The Bank of England has increased its supply of gold this week.

VIEWS OF MR. SHONTS.

President Theodore P. Shonts of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has said that the war in Europe, which he calls a "direct calamity," offers this country the business opportunity of centuries, but he says we are without a merchant marine to take advantage of it.

"When connected with the Panama Canal," he said, "we will have the opportunities offered shipping and commerce that seem strongly in favor of ship subsidies. It is manifestly unfair to our manufacturers and exporters to allow foreign steamers and responsibilities borne by governments o fother countries. With a nucleus of a merchant marine, the products of the world would be open to us. With our present banking laws our bankers can establish branches in South American and foreign countries, but our merchants are crippled by lack of ocean transportation."

As regard the possibilities of South American trade it may be remarked that countries in that part of the world bought abroad last year products to the amount of $965,122,447, and as this country is practically the only one now in the supply field there is certainly immense business opportunities awaiting the United States in the southern half of this hemisphere.

NEED SHIPS WITHOUT DELAY.

Daniel Guggenheim, like Mr. Shonts just home from Europe ,says the country to whad this greatest opportunity in its history. He said:

"Let everyone push and pull to get started. For the first time the world's hurts lie at our feet uncontested. Our European competitors are hopelessly crippled for the being. Ours is up to us to reap the benefits. Let us go ahead without delay, start building them, let the government help private ocean-going pleasure yachts, and what is more that can be used for transportation. Europe wants our products and manufactures, and in a time such as this is desperately in need of them. In six months, even less, I expect to see this country boiling with activity."

NO GRAIN CURRENCY.

In connection with the statement that the administration is against any attempt to issue a grain currency, a house receipts is basis for the issuance of currency, it has been done in the case of tobacco and cotton. It is stated that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is not in favor of cent grain market situation is due to speculation.

"The Treasury officials," according to a Washington dispatch to Hearst newspapers, "are convinced that the best position to relieve grain is through many foreigners realize. Large export portions. The result of recent wheat purchases in this country were captured wheat which was in the hands of speculators in England and not German ports. Most recent and direct purchases have been made from the United States and Canada. The British having now placed the United Kingdom on a satisfactory food basis, the Bank of England has increased its supply of gold this week.

Parker Brothers See Increase in Domestic Trade

Our business would be benefited rather than harmed by existing conditions, because Germany is largely eliminated as a competitor. Probably 50 per cent. of German shipments of toys to this country has been already delivered and in some cases large houses have received their entire shipments, though this is not the average case. The cutting out of German competition included in this remainder of unshipped toys and games naturally increases domestic business.—Parker Brothers, Games, Salem.

HELP AMERICAN WORKMEN; BUY HOME PRODUCTS

By B. C. FORBES.

You would like to see every American worker fully employed and every honest American business man prosperous.

Do you want to know how YOU can help to bring this about?

Demand "Made in America" goods.

Do you know that our foolish worship of the label "Imported" had begun to undermine our financial industrial stability?

Let me cite a few cold, ominous, to-be-heeded facts.

During the twelve months ended July 31 last we imported merchandise to the value of $1,815,000,000, a figure never before approached.

Compared with the previous twelve months, our balance of exports over imports decreased $750,000,000 — a staggering economic development of national and international significance.

GO AFTER BUSINESS.

In July, the latest month covered by official statistics, we actually bought fully $6,000,000 worth more than we sold, showing not parallelled in modern times.

American business men do well to buckle on their armor to capture foreign markets beckoning to us.

You and I may well pray to render practical assistance in invading fresh fields.

But let our manufacturers capture us!

Of the $1,815,000,000 bought from foreigners last year $1,000,000,000 could probably have been kept at home—and next year a thousand millions probably will be kept at home to fill American pay envelopes.

This is the time for homely, every day unspectacular patriotism.

Keep American dollars for American pay envelopes!

The Ingersoll Watch Company once called thousands of its salesmen together in one city. Meetings of all sorts were held for several days, many minds expressed themselves, much sage advice was offered. Then they freely interchanged. At the end the salesmen were asked to record what had helped them or encouraged them most. And what, think you, was it?

It was the thought, impressed upon them by one officer, that every time they sold a watch they gave work to somebody!

PRACTICE PATRIOTISM.

Let's stop spouting patriotism and practice it!

Sink the thought into your mind that every time you buy five cents' worth or five dollars' worth or five thousand dollars' worth of American merchandise, you are providing a job for some fellow-countryman and raising prosperity one little notch higher.

Grain speculators threaten to kill the goose that is laying golden eggs. By forcing prices up to utterly unreasonable levels they will ruin the export demand for American grain and inflict unjustified hardships upon our own population. If United States millers combine, Europe will look to member Europe can draw upon Canada, Russia, Argentina and other countries for supplies.

To attempt to "corner" wheat—as Washington hints is being done—is not a crime morally and economically and could entail nothing but disgrace and ruin in the end to everybody involved.

Speculators persist in sending wheat toward $1.50 a bushel, one day the bubble will burst with a bang. Here is an all simple philosophy: The time to sell is when everybody wants to buy.

ST. ELIZABETH HOSPITAL IS THROWN OPEN

St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the new $250,000 group of buildings at Washington and Cambridge streets, Brighton, opened today. There were informal exercises, on account of the recent death of the Pope and the absence of Cardinal O'Connell.

Dr. John R. Slattery is physician-in-chief and manager of the institution. Dr. John W. Lane is surgeon-in-charge. The building is fireproof. It is three stories high and built of cement, with a terra cotta roof.

There are 200 beds. The staff comprises fifty physicians and forty nurses. The kitchen and dining rooms for the hospital attendants are in the basement. No coal is used in the kitchens, only gas.

The first floor contains a pharmacy, a surgical outdoor department, a nose and throat department, library and chapel, and the wards are on the second floor, part of which is also devoted to the use of the nurses.

A chapel, a students' room, operating room and the remainder of the wards are on the third floor. The lights in each ward are on a separate circuit. There is a floor over each bed and by pressing a button a patient may summon a nurse at night without leaving patients. All of the buttons also connect with a red light in the hallway over the entrance to the ward, so that in case a nurse should be on another part of the floor she can tell in which ward she is needed.

Today the physicians in charge were busy receiving patients and visitors. The first operation will be performed at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The entire staff has been invited to the ceremonies. The invocation Dr. Slattery will give a luncheon to the physicians and nurses.

"Just a Scrap of Paper"

Such "Scraps" Have Played Important Parts in This World. Remember That

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company

There was much negotiating before the whole of Europe became a slaughter house with the best MURDERER the best MAN.

It is said that one of the fighting nations, referring to an appeal that treaties and neutrality be respected, said of the treaty, "It's just a scrap of paper."

Such scraps of paper are often torn up in war times.

But the ancient Jewish idea that written paper must not be destroyed and the ancient Chinese respect for the written word are not entirely out of date.

Scraps of paper are important in the long run. Sometimes from their ashes there rises trouble little dreamed of by those that despised the light, crumpled, written sheet.

Magna-Charta, the basis of the freedom that the English got from their King, was and is only a scrap of paper. From time to time powerful men have thought of it and spoken of it as a mere scrap of paper. But it has survived and outlived those that despised it.

Our own Declaration of Independence was only a scrap of paper—after the old and young gentlemen at Philadelphia had signed it and pledged their sacred honor to uphold it.

If you had asked England about that scrap of paper you would have heard that King George thought very little of it, and expected to crumple it.

It did seem to be crumpled for a time, with Washington losing every battle, one after the other.

But although crumpled up, it was smoothed out again. The old original is framed, the scrap of paper is yellow, the signatures are not as black as they were.

But that "scrap of paper" is still the most important and about the strongest thing in this world at present—infinitely more important than our fleet, our forts, our army.

And so may it prove in Europe.

May the despised "scrap of paper," torn, crumpled, burned, splashed with thick blood today, outlive the war, outlive tyranny, outlive brutality, AND ONE DAY RULE PERMANENTLY.

The scrap of paper is the written word of honor, the expression of man's desire and intention to be better than his nature makes him.

The scrap of paper will rule when every gun, cannon and warship has turned to rust and the names of those that used them are forgotten.

Plain Duty of the United States

To Give Solemn Pledges of Full Protection to Any American Investing Capital in Products Needed by Industry and No Longer Obtainable From Europe

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company

Many European factories have stopped—and their product was necessary to certain industries in the United States.

Even after the war ends those European industries will be crippled and inadequate.

This applies especially to the manufacture of dyes used by our cotton goods manufacturers and others, and essential to business.

The statement is made that American money will at once embark in the establishment here of aniline dye factories, IF ADEQUATE ASSURANCE OF PROTECTION CAN BE GIVEN.

Naturally, under ordinary conditions Americans could not and would not build dye factories, TO INCUR CERTAIN LOSS.

The business has been so highly developed abroad that the Americans could not compete for many years successfully, and could not compete AT ALL unless they had high protection in the meanwhile.

If it be true that American manufacturers are willing to risk their capital, devote their time and money to supply the people of this country with things that they need and can no longer get from Europe, such energetic citizens should have all protection possible.

The Government and Congress, through appropriate resolutions, and the various political parties in every official way possible, should guarantee ample tariff protection for a term sufficiently long to any Americans willing now to devote their money and time to making up the supplies of necessities no longer brought from Europe.

It would be just and wise, were it necessary, to go so far as to prohibit absolutely European importations until our own citizens shall have had a chance to develop the industries here on an adequate basis.

Long ago France set this example of the prohibition of importation. Thanks to that absolute protection rising high above all tariff, France could develop many of the industries in which she rules the world today.

While it is probable, unfortunately, that the war will last a long time, it is possible that it may end at any moment, following a series of great victories on either side.

Therefore Americans cannot be expected to risk their capital in new business, or endeavor to supply this country what Europe no longer supplies, unless they receive the positive guarantee that there is no chance of their being suddenly subjected to competition that would wipe them out, and make their expenditure and their factories useless.

Pounding at Our Doors

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Out of the Danger Zone.

There is no need to worry about Americans abroad as long as they are careful to keep out of neutral territory.

Just the Ship for This Emergency.

If we can believe everybody who says his ancestors came over in the Mayflower it is too bad she is not starting on her voyage now. She could accommodate all the Americans in Europe.

A Prophecy Made Good.

"There shall be wars and rumors of wars."

A Tiny Patch of Silver Lining.

Uncle Sam is congratulating himself that Greece didn't get those two battleships C. O. D.

Depreciated.

Mr. Mellen said that Westchester stock was worth ten cents a pound, which makes it considerably more valuable than European peace treaties.

Lots of 'Em Left.

Judging by all reports, England could muster an army corps of the survivors of Balaklava.

A Dangerous Gift.

Hereafter a nation will accept a guarantee of neutrality about as readily as the Czar would accept a package with a loud ticking noise inside of it.

Not Taking Any Chances.

The Prince of Monaco makes no ventures in the present situation. He always believed in letting other people do the gambling.

The Complete Work Is Loveliest.

Neither skyscrapers nor statues nor battleships nor history are at all beautiful in the making.

War as an Eye-Opener.

In a month or two we will find out whether all that French champagne really comes from France.

A Protest

I HOPE they finish up this war
Before next week, for then
I got to learn 'bout Europe, for
My school begins again.
An' this is what I'd like to know:
However can a chap
Learn things when every day or so
They go an' change the map?

I KNOW most all the boundaries now,
I had 'em pat last June,
But I have got a hunch, somehow,
They'll change 'em pretty soon.
I'll have to learn a different way
To bound the countries then,
And what's the use when every day
They're changin' 'em again?

I TELL you it is work enough
To learn all them things once,
An' it most certainly is tough
To do them changin' stunts.
An' so I hope they'll end the war,
Whatever nation wins,
An' get things straightened out before
Next term o' school begins.

Unanimous Response.

The peace party asked the powers to reduce their standing armies, and the powers are doing so just now with grim expedition.

Too Late

If Colombia sends in another bill for that $25,000,000 she will find that Congress has declared a permanent moratorium.

Fortunate Postponement.

After looking over the new Shamrock some of our yachtsmen think it might be just as well to use the next year in building a few new defenders.

Thus Have the Mighty Fallen.

It would appear from sundry dispatches that Mr. Carranza entered Mexico City a few weeks ago by way of the inside pages of the newspapers.

Practically Extinct.

You do not see nearly so many of those persons of wealth and culture with a taste for foreign travel as you used to.

Effective Remedy.

Speeding on the high seas is getting a good deal of a habit, but a couple of shots across his bow cures the worst offender in jig time.

It Will Come! It Will Come!

We are expecting to hear the thrifty Connecticut farmers announce that owing to the war the price of Connecticut cigars will go to two cents.

Back in His Old-Time Form.

Inasmuch as none of Rudyard Kipling's war poetry has got past the censor thus far, he must be writing some good, punchy stuff.

Not Yet, at Any Rate.

Gasoline is much cheaper, but unfortunately there is no way to prepare it for the table attractively.

Mutability.

All European boundary lines, like railroad time tables, ought to be labelled: "Subject to change without notice."

Hope

Inasmuch as the integrity of this country has never been guaranteed by the European powers, we feel comparatively safe from attack.

In-Shoots

Almost every man has his price; but the denominations of the currency differ.

It is always better to live so that your neighbors will not feel like congratulating your widow.

Those who pay as they go can travel on rubber tires most of the time.

A man can treat the crowd in a barroom and still be a bore the morning after.

It is possible to be the picture of health and still make a noise like an ambulance call.

Because his father brags about his achievements it is no infallible sign that a boy is so very smart.

As a rule, the girl who develops her muscles with a broom handle is more to be admired than the one who swings the golf stick.

The man who gets in on the ground floor always profits more than the one who starts something.

When a man listens patiently to your advice it may be a sign that he is not going to heed it.

The life of a bookkeeper on a losing proposition is never a bed of roses.

When the cat's away it is just as well to set the mouse trap.

Lack of Love in the Churches and That Holier Than Thou Attitude

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

A SELF-SUPPORTING woman writes a very interesting letter, and speaks of the things which have helped her along the path in life. She refers also to the failure of church members to live wholly up to the scriptural injunction to "Love thy neighbor as thyself," and says:

No Love in Church

"I myself attended a certain church two seasons, as it was more convenient to the place where I was living at that time than the church of which I was a member, and the only person who ever spoke to me during all that time was one of the ministers in charge during the latter part of the time I attended.

"Now, I did not care especially about this; but suppose it had been some one alone in the city and perhaps lonesome and discouraged? Would the cold, 'holier-than-thou' attitude of these people induce this person to call again?

"Suppose they should make a mistake and shake hands with an unfortunate woman, or thief, or drunkard of a man. Could they possibly do them any harm, and might they not do a great deal of good? It seems that a short time before I went to this church a stranger had come in (a woman), and afterward committed suicide. Might not a more cordial reception have saved her, and would this or would it not be worth while? I don't suppose that one of these people who knew of this incident ever thought of it in that light or had any qualms of conscience."

Further on in her letter she says she has found comfort in ideas expressed in this column in regard to spiritual things, "such as that we shall return to earth again, where our struggles in this life will affect the next incarnation, which is certainly encouraging, although rather new to me. I do not, however, see that they are in any way opposed to the Christian doctrine. When one struggles and tries to do well here, and meets with only discouragements and complaints and unpleasantness, it is comforting to think that none of our efforts is wasted.

"There is one thing that I wish you would continue to take note of in your writings. That is the power in prayer. Of course, I can not prove that there is a God or a hereafter, but I do most certainly know that in a very practical way prayer has helped me. Tell the girls that if they ever get where they are helpless and can do nothing there is one thing still they can do—pray. Tell them to try, and see if they are not helped."

This request is an easy one with which to comply, for the writer of this article has a profound faith in the efficacy of prayer, based on personal experiences.

This Request an Easy One

Not the prayer which takes the form of directions to the Creator how to run His universe, and what special boons and favors to bestow upon individuals, but the prayer which asks for MORE LIGHT to see the right path; MORE FAITH to make possible the bridging of yawning chasms, and MORE STRENGTH to employ in self-development.

The earnest cry of "SHOW ME THE WAY" in troubled times, and a sense of utterly abandoning the mortal mind to the Invisible Helpers and leaving it to them to indicate the path, will as surely lead the one who so cries out into safety as the needle will show the mariner the North Star.

Prayer Opens New Doors

There are Guardians in the Invisible Realms who are given the privilege of watching over earth beings. It is not their work to direct or manage our lives, because that would prevent our own development of judgment, self-control, analysis of motives, and all the other character-building qualities which we are expected to use here on earth; but our Guardians stand ever ready to come when we call, and give us new strength and more light, and to help us realize our highest ideals.

But we must WORK as well as pray to attain these ideals or anything which seems desirable to us.

Prayer doubles the efficacy of work, and prayer opens doors to new and wonderful experiences undreamed of by the unpraying toiler. Prayer refines the perceptions and gives us insight, and helps us to discover ways and means to the attainment of our desires which mere plodding, persistent labor would never discover.

A prayer without a deed is an arrow without a bowstring.

A deed without a prayer is a bowstring without an arrow.

The heart of a man should be like a quiver full of arrows.

And the hand of a man should be like a strong bow strung for action.

The heart of a man should keep his arrows ever ascending.

And the hand and the mind of a man should keep at a work unending.

BITTER SWEET

By CONSTANCE CLARKE.

YOU sought to hide him in the lap
Of Life, but well you knew his rap
Upon the casement, his return
Confounded you, and made you turn
Aside and think, but not for long—
At eventide, you heard the Song
Of Songs again, with laughter rife
Luring you with the call of Life.

And then you woke at dawn, but he
Was there before you, you could see
Him move the draperies, and the gloom
Of midnight brooded in the room.
Sleep, dream bewildered, fled your eyes
And you were sick with the surprise
Of what the day might bring from one
Who slumbered with the setting sun.

And when you stand crowned with the thing
Men call success, when plaudits ring
And you are glad, then will he come,
This surly Conscience, striking dumb
Your joy. Unwilled he follows you
Lest you forget his presence, who,
Knowing your inmost mind and thought,
Will bring you bittersweet, unsought.
